Bombing of Hanoi Steel Mill Decided on Last Month

By HEDRICK SMITH
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson gave the go-ahead for the attack on North Vietnam's Thai Nguyen steel plant last month after the collapse of efforts to begin peace negotiations with Hanoi, officials disclosed yesterday.

The officials reported that this was part of an overall tactical decision to "increase the price" of the war for the Hanoi regime. Under this decision, American forces previously began mining North Vietnamese rivers and intensified ground and naval shelling of North Vietnamese territory.

Cloudy weather over the steel mill, situated about 40 miles north of Hanoi, together with the time required for aerial reconnaissance and other preparations for the air raid, contributed to a delay of roughly three weeks.

The attack on the steel plant, which is the center of North Vietnam's ambitions for modern industrial development, is potentially tough for both the Soviet Union and Communist China. Communist China sent technicians, industrial equipment, and financial aid to help North Vietnam construct the steel plant. Chinese leaders, like the North Vietnamese, have attached great importance to it and are thus considered likely to be sensitive about American destruction of such a heavy industrial complex.

The Administration's decision to mine rivers and strike a major industrial installation such as the Thai Nguyen steel plant also involved a calculated risk with the Soviet Union, which last month showed new willingness to engage in efforts to promote peace talks.

Officials acknowledged privately that there was a danger that Moscow might react negatively to the intensification of the American campaign against North Vietnam and refuse to take an active part in future diplomatic maneuvers to initiate peace talks.

So far, however, analysts of Soviet affairs report that Moscow's public response has been "relatively routine" despite new propaganda blasts at the stepped-up American military measures.

WEATHER

It may not be spring until the 21st of this month, but we're into the wetter weather already. There's no chance at all of snow for awhile and very little chance of rain, those who prognosticate the probability claim. It didn't rain yesterday, in case you hadn't noticed. The high: a beautiful 63. The low was 27, but cheer up; tonight's will be 39 or so. Sunrise is at 6:38 a.m. and Old Sol sinks at 6:24 p.m.

WARREN COUNTY

March 13 is Meeting Monday, with borough council and the Warren County School District considering several matters of importance. Council will hear the second reading of the zoning ordinance, a resolution on the swimming pool, and the Liberty Street urban renewal project. Before the school district are matters of vocational-technical education, teachers' reactions to the salary schedule, and information from the Warren Chamber of Commerce's industrial division. William (Eddie) Skinner, the 23-year-old father of seven children, was given another chance yesterday to continue his good behavior. He was admonished "to be man enough to avoid trouble" by Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr., who suspended sentence on a forgery charge. Page B1.

THE NATION

Sen. Thomas Dodd, the target of an intense probe by columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson, denied he had used his office to gain money for his own personal use. He attacked the columnists and defended his use of money raised by testimonial dinners. Page A2.

Two teams of investigators probed two separate air crashes within 45 miles of each other in Ohio. The latest, which claimed 26 lives on Thursday, was found to have been caused by a collision of a private aircraft and jet airliner. Page A3.

THE WORLD

American forces took the war one step closer to Hanoi by bombing the largest steel mill in North Vietnam. The decision was among those made by President Johnson last month when he authorized the mining of rivers in the north and shelling of the north by naval and shore batteries. Page One.

The daughter of Joseph Stalin has defected to the west. She was aided in her flight from New Delhi by Central Intelligence Agency agents and the U.S. embassies, but the State Department disavowed any formal acknowledgement to avoid embarrassment on the diplomatic level. Page One.

SPORTS

The Warren YMCA Boys' Swimming Team competes in the District meet at Corry today. With a fine record against the area teams they will face, the local tankmen hope to place high and could win at least one class. A list of swimmers expected to do well appears on Page A6.

Villanova's Dave Patrick posted an indoor half-mile record of 1:48.9 in the NCAA Track and Field Meet at Detroit last night and whipped Jim Ryun of Kansas in the process. Page A6.

The opening round of the Annual NCAA Basketball Tournament opens today with seven games on tap around the country. UCLA is expected to unseat Texas Western as National Champions. The National Invitational Tournament also continues today. Page A6.

Doug Sanders took a two-stroke lead at the half-way mark of the Citrus Open Golf Tournament at Orlando, Florida. Dean Refram, tied with Sanders after the first day of play, held second, trailed by Arnold Palmer and Gary Player. Page A7.

National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy set Tuesday as a deadline for players to decide on whether or not to strike. He threatened a cancellation of division playoffs if the players did not come to terms by that time. Page A7.

ERNEST HAGENLOCHER

Hagenlocher Dies at Age of 76

Ernest Hagenlocher, who retired as vice president of Thomas Coupling a few years ago, died yesterday at the age of 76.

The family residence is 1930 Market St. ext. Mr. Hagenlocher died in Warren General Hospital at 4 p.m. after being hospitalized for six weeks.

He was born in Erie on May 15, 1890 and had resided in Warren for 26 years. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1913 with a degree in mechanical engineering. He taught at that university and then worked for the J. G. White Co., an engineering firm, in Japan and other foreign countries.

He was with Thomas Coupling from the time he came to Warren until his retirement.

Mr. Hagenlocher was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Joseph Warren Lodge 726 of the F & AM, the Warren County Shrine Club, Zen Zen Temple, the Cosmopolitan Club, and the Warren Rotary Club.

He is survived by his widow, Gladys Thomas Hagenlocher.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, with the Rev. Donald H. Spencer of the First Presbyterian Church officiating. The remains will be committed to Oakland Mausoleum.

Friends may call from 7 to 9 p.m. today and from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. tomorrow at the funeral home.

Members of Joseph Warren Lodge are asked to meet at the funeral home tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. to conduct rites.

Stalin's Daughter Defects; U.S. Doesn't Accept Her

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — To spare the United States diplomatic embarrassment with the Soviet Union, Svetlana Stalin, the daughter of the late Premier Josef V. Stalin, will take political asylum in a European country, U.S. officials disclosed yesterday.

Svetlana, who was said to have startled American officials by knocking at the door of the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi, India, asking for asylum in the U.S., was reliably reported to have been flown yesterday from Rome to a European country. Her future choice of asylum was not immediately disclosed, but it was believed to be either Sweden or Switzerland.

The State Department press spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, asked whether the 42-year-old daughter of the late Soviet dictator had sought political asylum in the U.S., said:

"This is not a matter on which we can properly comment at this time."

This statement was clearly

Busy Meet Scheduled For Council

The new zoning ordinance proposed for Warren borough, the Oak street swimming pool complex and the Liberty St. urban renewal project will come before borough council at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The ordinance, which aroused some controversy and which has undergone some refinements, is up for second reading as is the swimming pool. A resolution regarding the state grant for the urban renewal proposal will deal with increasing the amount from $45,000 to $52,000, according to borough manager Victor L. Miller.

An ordinance condemning property at the foot of Oak St. for the pool complex is slated for second reading. Approval of an agreement of sale between Yeagles and the borough will be submitted for first reading.

Bids will be opened for a fire chief's car, emergency truck and two trucks for the public works department along with bids for storm sewers on Lexington Ave.

Council will consider bids for the demolition of the now abandoned church adjacent to the municipal building. Other matters on the agenda appear to be routine.

intended, officials said, as confirmation of the reports that Svetlana had sought asylum in the U.S. They said the State Department was attempting to maintain an official silence for diplomatic reasons.

Asked when and where an announcement might be expected on Svetlana and her plans, McCloskey said "possibly from her or others concerned."

This indicated that the formal announcement of her defection probably would come from the European country that granted her asylum.

Privately, however, U.S. officials were making no attempt to conceal the fact that she had defected, although they were going to considerable length to conceal her whereabouts until she had reached her new home. There were hints that several weeks might pass before her whereabouts were disclosed.

The defection of Stalin's youngest child, who has lived in relative obscurity in Moscow since her father's death in 1953, reportedly surprised U.S. officials. They had no indication as to why she sought asylum in the West.

According to U.S. officials, her defection was a voluntary act on her part and there was no complicity by the Central Intelligence Agency, although the CIA subsequently arranged for her secret trip from New Delhi to a hideaway outside Rome.

Svetlana, according to officials, sought asylum Monday evening at the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi. She had come to India with the remains of Brijesh Singh, reportedly her third husband, who died in Moscow in late December or early January. An Indian Communist, Singh had been working in Moscow as a translator.

Check Area Waters for Pollution

Officials of the Fish Commission are keeping a close check on the waters of the Allegheny Reservoir because of contamination from Kinzua Creek.

The contamination came from a railroad car of sulphuric acid which spilled into the creek Monday. The spillage came from a B&O Railroad car near Backus, McKean County. State Fish Warden Wilbur Williams of Mt. Jewett said last night that no dead fish were reported near Kinzua Dam, but ice prevented a good count. He said some dead fish were found at the upper end of Kinzua Creek and near Kinzua Bridge.

State officials said the investigation of the fish kill would continue today, but it is impossible to accurately diagnose the extent of the kill because of the ice.

The area of the wreck is being treated by the railroad to neutralize any acid which may have saturated the soil.

U.S. Planes Bomb Hanoi Steel Mill

SAIGON (AP)—A keystone of North Vietnam's industrial power, the Thai Nguyen steel mill, came under American attack for the first time yesterday, intensifying the U.S. air offensive.

U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief pilots bombed the mill 38 miles north of Hanoi and fought off Soviet-designed MIGs that rose to challenge them.

A spokesman announced "bombs were on target" and said that, of the intervening Red jet fighters, the Americans destroyed one, probably downed another and damaged a third. None of the Thunderchiefs was reported hit.

The Thai Nguyen plant is North Vietnam's largest heavy industry installation and its only steel-fabricating mill.

Located in a coal and metal mining region between the capital and Red China's frontier, it has turned out such things as petroleum drums, bridge sections and cargo barges—all helpful to the war effort of Ho Chi Minh's regime.

There was no immediate assessment of damage to the plant. Under ordinary procedure, if reconnaissance shows it can still be used further raids will follow.

AP military writer Fred S. Hoffman reported in a Washington dispatch that the plant had been on the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff target list for more than a year, but President Johnson withheld authority to bomb it in hopes other operations would achieve desired results.

There were indications the President probably approved the bombing of the plant at the same time last month that he authorized three other steps—the shelling of North Vietnam across the demilitarized zone, Navy bombardment of coastal objectives and the aerial mining of navigable rivers.

However, the weather has been bad and the Air Force waited for good visibility conditions rather than use radar to bomb through the clouds. Officials said the aim was to minimize civilian casualties in the lightly populated area around the plant. They conceded some plant workers probably were killed.

It was announced that the Thunderchiefs—super-sonic single-seated fighter-bombers—staged the raid from a base at Ta Khli, Thailand, about 550 miles southwest of Hanoi.

Secrecy that had attended two years of American air operations from Thailand against Communists in North Vietnam and Laos was officially dropped Thursday in Washington and in Bangkok, capital of that Southeast Asian ally of the United States.

Returning to Ta Khli, Capt. Max C. Brestel, 32, Chappell, Neb., told newsmen he got the enemy plane known to have been destroyed. He identified it as a MIG19, an intermediate model in a series of which the MIG21 is Hanoi's best.

"I shot it in the wing," he said. "It folded over, inverted and hit the ground."

This was the 37th MIG listed as shot down in dogfights over North Vietnam dating back to April 4, 1965. Enemy pilots have shot down 10 American planes.

A Hanoi dispatch broadcast from Peking declared that North Vietnamese gunners, countering various American strikes yesterday, shot down four planes. There was no confirmation in Saigon.

Sukarno Finally Rejected

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno, the self-styled "great leader" for two decades, was all but stripped of power and title today by vote of a special committee of the Indonesian Congress.

Committee sources said the decision will be presented at a full session of the Indonesian Congress for final approval. It could bring to a formal end the tempestuous rule of the man who led the nation of more than 100 million in rebellion and then to independence from the Dutch in 1949.

The showdown may be perilous for Indonesia. Strong man Gen. Suharto has tried to head off a complete dismissal of Sukarno for fear of igniting a civil war.

Suharto, who has held all executive power in Indonesia since March 1966, argued strongly that Congress at least leave Sukarno as president in name. He warned that Sukarno still enjoys popularity among the masses and that the country could be inviting a civil war.

Armed forces military commanders submitted three draft proposals aimed at softening the dismissal order, but these proposals were rejected.

The committee ruled that Sukarno was no longer capable of handling his presidential duties.

The committee session lasted until early morning at the Soviet built sports hall where Congress meets.

A note attached to the final draft of the committee resolution recommended "engineer Sukarno" be investigated by legal authorities in connection with the Communist coup attempt of October 1965, sources said.

The coup started Sukarno's

Congressman Protests Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been accused by one of its members of following a double standard—fattening its own payroll while calling for budget cuts in "Great Society" domestic programs.

"We should do unto others what we do unto ourselves," says Sen. John G. Pastore, D-R.I. "We should do to ourselves what we are trying to do to others."

Pastore spoke this week in a futile effort to block adoption of an amendment to a bill that would allow senators to employ an additional staff aide at $23,000 a year—a potential cost of $2.3 million in a payroll that has increased 81 per cent in a decade.

The house payroll has climbed even faster—84 per cent in six years—as a generous Congress has pushed salaries up almost annually until Capitol Hill stands as one of the strongest bastions in the war against poverty.

Being postmaster of the House is a better-paying job than being postmaster of Chicago. In the House, where the mail volume runs less than 100 million pieces a year, the salary is $24,500. In Chicago, with a volume of 6.6 billion pieces, it is $23,950. The Senate postmaster, with less mail to handle, gets $1,000 more than the $18,500 paid to Cleveland's postmaster, responsible for 1.8 billion pieces.

There are 494 jobs in Congress paying more than $20,000, not counting those that will be added as a result of the bill passed by the Senate this week. The average pay for nearly 400 committee staffers is $15,000.

The top salaries of $28,500—only $1,500 less than the senators and representatives make—go to the parliamentarians, head doorkeepers and sergeants at arms of the House and Senate.

The top committee job pays $25,890, a figure pegged to the top Civil Service rating for "career executives" such as bureau heads. There were five getting that sum on the House Education and Labor Committee when Adam Clayton Powell was chairman. Most committees have at least two.

The Senate bill that drew Pastore's criticism set the same top scale for Senate committees. They had been scaled $1,300 lower.

You don't have to be an executive to make good money on Capitol Hill. Shorthand reporters who record debate are paid $22,000 a year. The clerks who read the bill titles and amendments and call the roll get $19,200. So do the clerks who record the roll calls.

The chaplains who open each session of Congress with a prayer—their only official duty—get $15,886 in the Senate and $15,550 in the House.

THE ONOVILLE DIGGINGS

This aerial photo, taken by Warren photographer Everett Stokoe, shows the archaeological diggings at Onoville, N.Y., before the area was covered by the waters of the Allegheny Reservoir. A vast find of artifacts was found in the diggings, which were carefully uncovered by members of the Kinzua Chapter of the Archeological Society. Moving only inches per day, the archeologists analyzed each segment of earth for age and era. The bridge in the photo has since been moved and the curved section of road is that which was built to bypass the reservoir area.

Sen. Dodd Denies Using Donations for Own Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, facing a public investigation of his financial affairs, said yesterday he has not enriched himself in office, offered to refund on request money donated to his testimonial dinners, and declared "I have no regrets."

Haggard but defiant, the white-haired Connecticut Democrat declared:

"I would do what I have done all over again."

His angry speech in an almost empty Senate chamber came as the Senate ethics committee prepared to embark Monday on its open investigation.

"I have not enriched myself from public office," Dodd said. "Indeed, the contrary is the fact."

Dodd made public a financial statement setting his net worth at $53,978 as of Feb. 15, and said he always had known that an accounting of his assets and liabilities "would reveal me as one of the poorer members of Congress."

The ethics committee is investigating charges by columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson that Dodd converted to personal use more than $100,000 raised at testimonial dinners and campaign functions between 1961 and 1965.

Dodd's speech was filled with bitter words about Pearson, Anderson and four of his former Senate assistants he accused of supplying the columnists with stolen documents from his office files.

"Pearson is the Rasputin of American society and Jack Anderson is his jackal," said Dodd.

At the heart of Dodd's defense was his insistence that the money raised through a series of testimonial dinners he put the total at $170,000 - constituted a tax free gift to

Mexican Mother Has 8 Babies

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Dr. Ignacio de la Fuentes, director of the 20th of November Hospital, said a 21-year-old woman gave birth to eight babies last night. He said two of them died shortly after birth and the other six are in critical condition.

The four boys and four girls were born two months prematurely to Maria Teresa Lopez de Sepulveda in a small clinic in a lower-class neighborhood. Mrs. Sepulveda and her husband, Gener, 27, are the parents of a 3-year-old daughter.

Dr. de la Fuentes said, "It is almost impossible any of them will survive."

downfall. The military stamped out the attempt to overthrow the government and, in reprisal, about 300,000 Indonesian Communists were reported slain.

Vietnam

The fact the MIG's sought to defend the plant could be one indication of its value to the North Vietnamese economy. They had avoided contact with the Americans since nine were shot down in early January. Knowledge of the strikes from Thailand has been pretty much an open secret around the world. Up to 75 per cent of U.S. Air Force sorties against North Vietnam are understood to be mounted from Thai bases. Marine and Navy fliers work from South Vietnam and from carriers at sea.

Some sources say the announcement is likely to smooth the way for the stationing of B52 bombers in Thailand, shortening by more than 1,000 miles the flights they have been making from Guam.

A field with an 11,500-foot runway, which could handle the eight-engine jets, has been built at Sattahip, on the Gulf of Siam 75 miles southeast of Bangkok. The Thai Nguyen raid came in the midst of a comparative lull in the ground fighting in South Vietnam.

There was a sharp clash Thursday, however, between U.S. paratroopers and the Viet Cong in the jungles of War Zone C, where a 45,000-man American force is in the third week of the war's biggest offensive, Operation Junction City.

Military sources said Viet Cong gunners, concealed in trees and bunkers, opened up on a company of the 173rd Airborne Brigade at a thatched hut camp the Americans had occupied after a brief firefight.

The Americans, numbering perhaps 180, withdrew under artillery cover after a five-hour battle. A spokesman said three Americans and 16 Viet Cong were killed. Thirty-one Americans were wounded.

Decision

It was reliably learned that the military Joint Chiefs of Staff had included the Thai Nguyen steel mill on their list of recommended targets since early 1965. Johnson and his top civilian advisers vetoed such an attack, presumably for political reasons, until mid-February.

Officials conceded privately that the attack on the steel plant marked a significant broadening of the air war over North Vietnam, with increased risk of civilian casualties among the workers at the plant. But the government took the official position that the raid did not represent escalation or a shift in policy.

Robert J. McCloskey, the State Department spokesman, was asked by newsmen whether the attack on Thai Nguyen represented an escalation or a shift in bombing policy.

"No, it does not," he replied. "It's a plant that is involved in fabricating steel that is used for barges. That is used to increase infiltration. It's steel that is used in bridges. All of which fall into the category of legitimate military targets."

"By this explanation," a newsmen asked, "is there anything which fabricates any construction material in the North Vietnamese economy which could be excluded from the category of legitimate targets?"

"I just don't know enough about what other things there are," McCloskey replied.

Privately, however, officials said they could not exclude the possibility of other attacks against industrial installations which have not been struck in the past.

New Orleans Investigation Into JFK Death Continues

By JACK OWENS
NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's office asked Dean Andrews Jr. yesterday to undergo hypnosis or take a lie-detector test to determine if he can identify a mysterious figure in the Kennedy assassination probe.

Andrews, a lawyer, told the Warren Commission a "Clay Bertrand" telephoned him soon after President John F. Kennedy's death and asked him to represent Lee Harvey Oswald. The Warren Commission identified Oswald as the lone assassin. The commission never was able to locate Bertrand.

Garrison charged in a search warrant application last week that Clay Bertrand was an alias used by Clay L. Shaw, wealthy retired managing director of the International Trade Mart here. Shaw was arrested March 1 on murder conspiracy charges growing out of Garrison's investigation.

Andrews, who has been questioned both by Garrison's staff and the Orleans Parish — county — grand jury, told the Warren Commission he did not know if Shaw and Bertrand are the same person.

Shaw publicly denied he ever used an alias.

In asking Andrews to take a lie detector test, the district attorney's office offered him a choice of a polygraph — conventional lie detector, hypnosis or truth serum — sodium pentothal.

Andrews' attorney declined to say if his client would comply.

Hit-Run Accident Clarified

Borough police report that circumstances surrounding a hit-and-run accident which occurred at 5 p.m. Tuesday have changed.

An 18-year-old girl, Darlene Joanne Farrell, Star Route, Tonesta, was apprehended at 10:45 p.m. after it was believed she was the driver of a car which struck a parked vehicle owned by Paul Cable, of 25 S. Carver st., in front of his residence.

The girl and the car were reported missing early Thursday morning. Police said Miss Farrell turned herself into the proper authorities and the car was found Thursday in Frewsburg, N.Y.

In reopening the case, police said the hit and run vehicle was driven by Mrs. Jean Dufresne, of 2011 Pennsylvania ave. E., who, according to police, abandoned the car in Frewsburg.

The investigation is being continued and charges are expected to be filed against Mrs. Dufresne, police stated.

Three Face Charges Of Forgery

Three Warren County men face charges of forgery and false pretense which were to be filed in Erie County yesterday.

Sheriff D. E. Allen Jr. said the trio allegedly passed two bad checks in Corry and two in Erie on March 8.

Suspects in the case are Virgil I. Hebrner, 23, Sugar Grove; Richard E. Petty, 22, RD 1, Bear Lake; and Frank Miles, RD, Spring Creek.

According to police, the checks were drawn on Marine National Bank in Corry to an account number listed to Opal Miles of Spring Creek.

Corry police on Thursday were also looking for a man who tried to cash two checks there Wednesday but gave up in both cases, once when asked for identification and when a store proprietor started to check the account at the bank.

Two Slightly Hurt When Cars Collide

A two-car accident at 3:40 p.m. yesterday on Pennsylvania ave. west near Chestnut st., resulted in minor injuries to three persons.

Mrs. Clara LaTrent of 1411 Pennsylvania ave. east was admitted to Warren General Hospital with possible back injuries.

Mrs. Carmella May Baribeau of the same address and her young son were treated and released after their car was struck in the rear by a car being driven by Gilbert V. Lawson of 1468 Conewango ave. ext.

Borough patrolman Robert Kates reported $60 damage to the Baribeau car and $40 to the Lawson auto.

The 1967 rate if $50.49 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. This is an increase of $3.72 over the rate paid in 1966.

Lazier said most of the tax increase will go to cover wage increases and insurance benefits for city workers.

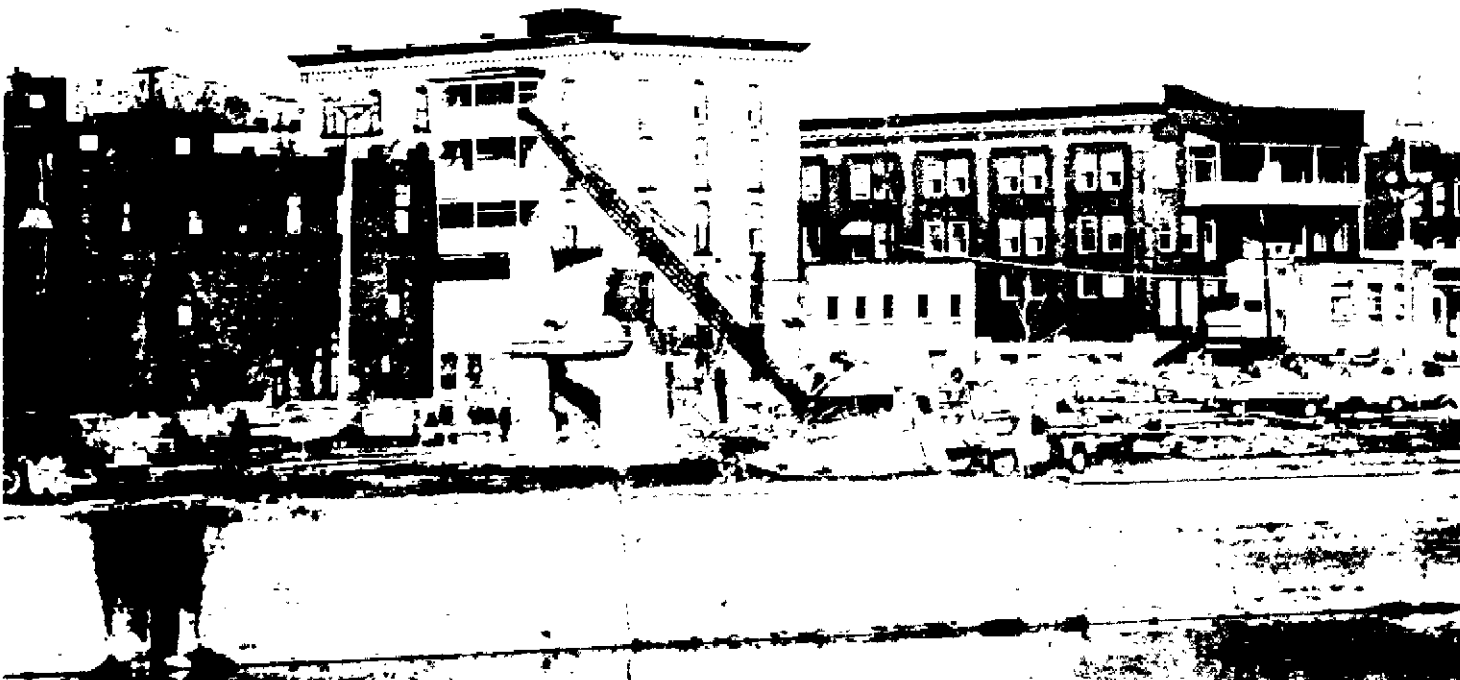

The estimated cost of the pay raises and fringe benefits for city employees is $200,000. Lazier estimated that the 1968 cost will be at least $250,000.

with the request.

In a statement to the Warren Commission, Andrews said "a voice I recognized as Clay Bertrand" telephoned him just after the assassination and asked him to go to Dallas to represent Oswald. Andrews said he was sick at the time and declined.

Andrews said Bertrand was "mostly a voice on the phone" in his dealings with him.

Andrews said Oswald came to his office on legal matters several times during the summer of 1963.

Voting of Local Legislator Listed

Assemblyman William C. Fuelhart of the Warren-Forest district supported all except one piece of major legislation before the Assembly during the week of March 6-10. The six bills which were supported by the local legislator all passed, while the amendment that the proceedings of the constitution convention preparatory committee be open to the public, which he voted against, was defeated. Senator Richard Frame of the local district voted in favor of the two bills before the Senate, both of which were approved.

SOME CHANGES PLANNED

Surplus Food Survey Shows Abuses Among Pennsylvanians

WASHINGTON — The House Agriculture Committee next week will be urged to phase out direct handouts of Federal food surpluses because of disclosures the program has been abused.

Recent General Accounting Office (GAO) spotchecks indicate millions of dollars worth of Government-owned food is being handed out by state and local authorities to persons who don't qualify for it on the basis of need.

The latest GAO report showed that in three Pennsylvania counties alone 14,000 to 26,000 ineligible families had been receiving free commodities during a three-month period.

The cost of feeding these people, GAO said, ranged between $182,000 and $602,000. Subsequently about 16,500 families were removed by state and local officials from the eligibility rolls.

An earlier GAO investigation in the St. Louis area also turned up glaring irregularities.

Besides ineligible participants, the GAO also found $5000 worth of food hadn't been accounted for and participants had been required to sign blank receipts for their commodities.

Rep. Leonor Sullivan, Missouri Democrat, today called these abuses "disgraceful" and charged that great amounts of food have been wasted. "It just rots in warehouses," she said.

Mrs. Sullivan said she would ask the House Committee to phase out the direct handout program and replace it by expanding the existing Federal food stamp plan, of which she was the original congressional sponsor.

Under the direct handout system the Government-owned commodities are given recipients. In 1966 it provided food for four million persons at a cost of 134 million dollars.

Under the food-stamp plan Federal stamps worth more than needy persons pay for them are redeemable for food through regular grocery-store outlets.

The Agriculture Department is seeking to broaden the food-stamp plan to about 180 million dollars in 1968 in an effort to get more states to substitute it for the direct handout program, which the department concedes has had "serious problems."

Pressure to replace the direct-commodity program has been further increased by dwindling U.S. surpluses.

Agriculture Department officials blame problems of the direct-commodity program on the fact that control is vested in local officials who often are warehousing or assessing welfare needs.

In contrast the Food Stamp Law requires its administration by qualified welfare agencies.

Despite weakness of the direct handout program, it is doubtful it will be phased out completely.

Reuther Prepared For Union Strike

DETROIT (AP) United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther laid it on the line yesterday: His union will strike, if necessary, to gain a guaranteed annual income from the auto industry in new contract bargaining this year.

Reuther also took occasion to renew his criticism of AFL-CIO President George Meany and assert that, "All the press releases in the world out of Miami Beach cannot change the fact that the labor movement is vegetating."

The UAW president's strike threat and Meany criticism came as Reuther addressed some 290 delegates representing approximately 50,000 technical, office and professional employees represented by the UAW.

Reuther asserted, "I'm saying we're not going to sign an agreement this year until we get a guaranteed income for our membership" from the auto industry.

He didn't use the words "annual salary, instead of wages" as he previously had done in specifying what would be a top goal in rewriting current three-year contracts which expire Sept. 5 at the Big Three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Questioned by newsmen, he said "guaranteed annual income" amounted to the same thing, except that when an auto worker began a new year he'd know how much his income would be for the next 12 months, whether he worked them all or was laid off part of the time.

"If General Motors can pay its executives by the year, it can pay its workers by the year," Reuther said.

Irving Bluestone, Reuther's administrative assistant, shortly before had referred to the union's top goal as "guaranteed employment or income."

Bluestone said, however, eligibility was among "many complex and intricate questions" still to be solved; whether the plan should be applied only to those with five years or more seniority or to all workers effective the day anyone went on the job.

TRAFFIC'S TERRIFIC

It's not Pennsylvania Avenue at 5 p.m. This is the Spanish Square on the Via del Babuino in Rome, where traffic's terrific almost every day. On Thursday, though, it was worse than usual. A five-hour bus and streetcar strike tied things up even more.

Teams Probing Two Air Crashes

URBANA, Ohio (AP)—Teams of investigators working within 45 miles of each other yesterday tried to unravel two separate airliner crashes that claimed 64 lives in Ohio this week.

In woods and gullies west of Urbana, the search continued for the last 26 victims of an apparent collision between a Trans World Airlines jet and a private plane.

Recovery workers combing wreckage of the DC9 jetliner yesterday morning reported finding one engine of the private Beechcraft that fell two miles away, adding to evidence the planes collided.

To the northwest, in a Marion warehouse, federal investigators reported "good progress" piecing together fragments of a Lake Central turboprop airliner that crashed near Kenton Sunday night, killing all 38 aboard.

Official sources said early investigations showed a propeller problem to be the most likely cause of the Lake Central crash. Four blades of the prop were found scattered along the route leading to the rural area where the plane struck the earth.

A collision, on a clear day, seemed the probable explanation for the Urbana crash.

Urbana area farmer James R. McGuire said he looked into the noontime sky Thursday in time to see "the big plane hit something. I couldn't tell what."

The apparent collision occurred in clear, bright weather, with veteran pilots in both planes.

Republicans Split Over Demo Powell

By AUSTIN SCOTT
NEW YORK (AP)—The New York City Republican party shows increasing signs of splitting along racial lines over the selection of James H. Meredith to oppose Democrat Adam Clayton Powell in a special congressional election called for April 11.

City Human Rights Commissioner William Booth on Thursday joined a growing number of prominent Negro Republicans who strongly object to running Meredith as their party's candidate against Powell.

Booth said he and other Harlem Negro leaders believe "Adam Clayton Powell should be returned to Congress, and any attempt by anyone denying him this right is unwanted."

The commissioner joined former baseball star Jackie Robinson, an aide to Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, several Harlem Republican district leaders and a large number of Harlem residents in saying Powell's exclusion from the House of Representatives was not a political matter, but a racial one.

"In a normal election two parties should be represented," Booth said. "In this, people have indicated they don't want this kind of election because Adam Powell's seat has been illegally taken away from him. Any talk of candidacy is premature and should await the results of court proceedings to set aside the election."

Booth's statement added impetus to a feud growing within the Republican party between its predominantly white leadership, and the predominantly Negro district leaders in Harlem.

"At this time the Republican party would be much stronger if we'd go along with Adam," said Lucille Pickett Williams, a co-leader of 18th Congressional District Republicans.

"This is sort of an emotional, racial problem," she added. "We want to see him get his seat back. I'm not agreeing with all these other things he's done, but taking his seat was unconstitutional."

The 'Passport' to Recreation

If you plan to visit many federal recreation areas during the coming season, it will be to your advantage to buy the $7 annual entrance permit—better known as the "Golden Eagle Passport." It is good for entrance to federal charge areas throughout the United States from April 1st through March 31st.

Purchase of the "passport" can be wise and economical as entrance and use charges are now made at many developed recreation areas in accordance with the 1965 Land and Conservation Fund Law.

The charges are made to make it possible for the government to buy tracts of land for future recreation needs of the public.

In this area the "Golden Eagle" is available on the Allegheny National Forest, at some recreation areas, and also at the forest supervisors office (post office building) in Warren, the ranger's office (terminal building) in Bradford, at the ranger stations in Sheffield, Marienville and Ridgway.

In addition to the entrance fee, there is a user fee for camping at campgrounds where special accommodations have been provided for you.

Except along the shores of the Allegheny Reservoir and within classified scenic or natural areas, you may camp and picnic without charge at undeveloped spots. With this opportunity, we should all realize, goes the responsibility to leave a clean camp and a dead fire.

There are no special hunting or fishing requirements or licenses on the Allegheny National Forest. However, the same provisions as to season, bag limits, regulations and licenses are in effect in the forest as for the rest of the state of Pennsylvania.

The forest is a place to enjoy—and protect.

Freshmen Ask Equal Standards

(Copyright, 1967, by Bell-McClure Syndicate) WASHINGTON—It is a House tradition that freshmen should be seen and not heard, but the 46 freshmen Republicans have boldly called upon their seniors to apply the same ethical yardstick to all Congressmen that was used to judge Adam Clayton Powell.

What was wrong for Powell, they said in effect, is wrong for his colleagues who voted to throw him out of Congress.

No individual Congressman, they declared, should be "judged against any special standard against which we are not all ready and willing to be judged."

In this spirit, we are ready to offer evidence to the appropriate House committee—if the House ever establishes one—that Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., is unfit to continue as chairman of the sensitive House Armed Services Committee.

Not only does his drinking problem make him a security risk, but he has used his influence at the Pentagon to help defense contractors. We have carefully documented, for example, how he brought pressure upon the Military Sea Transportation Service to pay the Power Equipment Corporation $104,394 more than its contract allowed for repairing the Navy transport Randall.

It may be merely a coincidence that his law partner at the time, T. E. Pedersen, represented various defense contractors.

"I always represented these clients on an individual basis," Pedersen assured us. "The Congressman had nothing to do with them."

Pedersen added that his legal work for defense contractors picked up after he stopped practicing law with Rivers. Pedersen also said he was affiliated with the Washington law firm of Sellers, Conner and Cuneo, which specializes in government contract work.

By another interesting coincidence, this happens to be the law firm that represented the Power Equipment Corporation in its efforts to squeeze more money out of the taxpayers.

Gilbert A. Cuneo, one of the partners, denied that his firm is "affiliated" with either Pedersen or Rivers, though this was the word used by Pedersen to describe the relationship. Cuneo claimed that Pedersen had brought only one case to his firm, involving a Polaris submarine contract.

Cuneo admitted that Pedersen drops into the office when he's in Washington, also that Rep. Rivers's name has been brought up in their conversations.

"But," Cuneo added with emphasis, "I wouldn't know Mendel Rivers if he walked into this room."

Thus it must have been for a complete stranger that Rivers interceded for to get the $104,394 which Power Equipment was demanding for "extra work." For there is no other known link between the Congressman and the corporation, which was located in Brooklyn.

Rivers has a keen sense of geography. He dementally, he is not one who likes wilderness. He is not one of the breed of the dissenters.

His instincts and his appetites are to be where real power is, and that is why it must be especially disquieting at the White House that he has broken his long silence. For Lyndon Johnson, too, is acutely interested in the sources of power, and in this affair one professional has spoken to another.

The Kennedy break cannot be explained in terms of short-term political ambition. Unless President Johnson withdraws voluntarily, there is no conceivable way that Kennedy can be nominated and elected in 1968.

It is, in fact, unthinkable that he would make a fight for the nomination in 1968. But 1972 is a quite different matter. A new generation will be present then, and it is clear that Robert Kennedy cannot be with it if he shrinks from the battle now.

In the eyes of the President and his partisans the dissenting livers frequent speeches about the glories of his native South Carolina. Not only his oratory but his voting record suggests that he has little in common with the people of Brooklyn.

Yet he intervened with the Military Sea Transportation Service to help a Brooklyn corporation. Rivers got on the phone to Vice Admiral John "Dutch" Will, then the MSTC commander, and now president of American Export Lines.

"What's all this trouble over extras?" Rivers began the conversation, referring to Power Equipment's claim. He asked the admiral to see Joe Kelly, who was pushing the company's claim in Washington.

The admiral, who knew who buttered the Navy's bread in Congress, phoned his commander in Brooklyn, Rear Admiral D. T. Eller, and ordered him to negotiate with Kelly. The phone call was made while Kelly, all smiles, was still seated across the desk from Will.

While the negotiations were in progress, Rivers read a flattering biography of Admiral Will into the Congressional Record.

"Dutch" Will, as he is admirably known to his friends in the Navy and in maritime circles, is an admiral's admiral," solemnly declared Rivers.

With Rivers in the act, Power Equipment jacked up its claim to $173,150.61 but finally settled for $104,394.

It will be interesting to see whether the House treats Rivers the same as it did Powell. It should also be worth watching the response of Rep. Albert Watson, R-S.C., and Durward Hall, R-Mo., who led the House assault upon Powell but earlier defended Rivers's conduct.

This column reported recently that federal officials were red-faced over having given an anti-air pollution award to Louis A. Wehde of the Ford Motor Company at exactly the time the Ford plant at Dearborn, Mich., was accused of being a major contributor to air pollution.

A similar case has come to light in Wisconsin. Gov. Warren P. Knowles recently presented an award to Guido Rahr of Manitowish, Wis., as "conservationist of the year." And the Wisconsin Conservationist, in commenting on the award, said: "Mr. Rahr's accomplishments in conservation are phenomenal. Few approach Guido Rahr's prowess as a conservation missionary."

What was not mentioned was the fact that a federal investigation of interstate pollution of the upper Mississippi River system in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area had found the Rahr Malting Company which Guido Rahr heads to be one of the main polluters of those water resources. The pollution is so severe that it makes the Mississippi and sections of Lake Pepin in both Wisconsin and Minnesota unfit for boating, water skiing, swimming and even fishing. And the Rahr Malting Company is listed as the fourth worst contributor to this pollution.

Yet the man who heads it has been named Wisconsin's "conservationist of the year."

Who Killed Cock Robin?

By all reports, none of them denied at the White House or by Sen. Robert Kennedy, the President is particularly furious at finding that the Kennedy family has joined the open opposition to Vietnam. The President has somewhat furiously about, for Sen. Kennedy has been most reluctant to oppose the President and has waited for a long time to make the break.

The fact that he has now done it testifies to something the President does not want to hear: namely, that the Democratic opposition to his course in Vietnam has reached a point where a politician who aspires to national leadership must align himself with that opposition.

Robert Kennedy is not one who would choose to be a voice crying in the wilderness. Temperamentally, he is not one who likes wilderness. He is not one of the breed of the dissenters.

His instincts and his appetites are to be where real power is, and that is why it must be especially disquieting at the White House that he has broken his long silence. President Kennedy's Foresight

VIENTIANE, LAOS — Besides infiltrators in transit to South Vietnam, there are now close to 50,000 North Vietnamese troops and troop-support personnel in Laos. Yet, under the Geneva accord signed in 1962, Hanoi promised early and complete withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from Laos.

Under the same accord, Laos was to have a unicef-governed government of nationalists, neutralists and Communists. In fact, the government of nationalists and neutralists, wisely and courageously led by Prince Souvanna Phouma, has been forced to carry on a permanent civil war against the Communist Pathet Lao.

One might think, then, that the Geneva accord, negotiated by Gov. Averell Harriman at the direction of President Kennedy, had been an all-time diplomatic deadbust. As anyone can see, this accord is most emphatically not what it has been claimed to be by some of the cronies of the late President's brother, Sen. Robert Kennedy. Any Vietnamese settlement modeled on this accord about Laos will merely be a concealed surrender.

Yet President Kennedy, as related in the last report in this space, by no means saw the Geneva accord as a true settlement of the affairs of Laos. He saw it, rather, as a kind of holding action which would serve well enough until the future of this part of the world was determined in "the main theater," as he described South Vietnam.

Viewed in this very special light, the results of the 1962 accord have amply proved President Kennedy's foresight. For the makeshift arrangements produced by the accord have permitted the Laotians to make very significant progress.

By far the most important of these arrangements was the elevation of the neutralist leader, Prince Souvanna Phouma, to the prime ministership. This wise head of the junior branch of the Laotian royal house has proved to be both national-minded and extremely practical.

At the outset he no doubt believed that he could manage the kind of three-cornered government that was envisioned at Geneva. To this day he still keeps ostentatiously open the cabinet places allotted to the Pathet Lao. But when the Lao Communists showed they regarded the three-cornered government as a mere instrument for a complete Communist takeover, Prince Souvanna squarely and promptly faced the facts.

From that moment, civil war has been continuous in Laos, with the nationalists and neutralists united against the Communists. Nor has this been the unmitigated misfortune that you might suppose, for the Communist threat, has by stages given birth to something like true national unity among all the non-Communists.

One important stage was the exile of the all-or-nothing nationalist leader, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan. Another, more recent stage was the election from the country of the self-intoxicated neutralist military commander, Gen. Kong Le (after a French Secret Service intrigue with incomparable elements of gaminess, including a rich dose of sex).

Before long, the nationalist and neutralist armed forces should be successfully merged in a single national army. Long since, meanwhile, the hold on the countryside of the Communist Pathet Lao, which resulted solely from terrorism, began to be broken throughout the 60 per cent of Laos controlled by Prince Souvanna's government.

In this main part of Laos, the Communists, who once ranged up to the outskirts of Vientiane, are now left with no more than tiny pockets in remote areas, and these pockets are being progressively liquidated. Real progress has also been made economically, administratively and in many other ways.

No serious attempt has been made, however, to break the Communist hold on their two main areas of full control—the part of South-Eastern Laos through which the Ho Chi Minh Trail now runs and the most northerly provinces, including the Plain of Jars. These are too heavily occupied by North Vietnamese troops. (Without the North Vietnamese, the Pathet Lao could hardly hold their areas for more than a few months.)

Yet it is reasonable to hope that if and when the North Vietnamese are forced to withdraw from South Vietnam, the Laotians will also get back these lost parts of their country.

And if that happens, President Kennedy's foresight will be proved to the hilt.

A nation is not happy when it is not at peace with its own conscience. It is not surprising that there is so much anxiety,

Taxpayers will have an opportunity tomorrow afternoon (1 to 5) to see where some of their construction dollars have gone recently in the open house at Beaty Junior High School to inspect the expanded and remodeled building which now houses a big 1490 pupil attendance . . . We like that locally-financed urban renewal at Jamestown where new buildings along the entire east side of Pine between 3rd and 4th and along the south side of Fourth from Pine to Factory alley will be constructed by Jamestown Mutual Insurance Company in a giant office complex . . . Rowboats, as well as mechanically powered boats in New York state, will be required to carry life preservers under a bill signed this week by Gov. Rockefeller . . . Commencement at Chatham College down at Pittsburgh will be a strictly family affair again this year with three fathers of graduates doing all the talking . . .

My, my if those "black flies" down Tidiloute way sting you with the wallop of some we've felt on Canadian lakes in past years, it's not going to be such a comfortable place to drop anchor for a bout with the walleyes . . . 'Tis reported that one of the area campuses is a bit worried about an outbreak of marijuana smoking of late weeks . . . The Shriners better watch out for the leprechauns will bedevil them and their "Little German Band" at the Shamrock Ball at Rainbow Gardens tonight . . . You can grab a glimpse of the first round of NIT Tourney at Madison Square Garden over CBS-TV (Channel 4, Buffalo) at 2 this afternoon when Providence squares off against Memphis State . . . Jim Blomquist, the retired North Warren merchant, filed a list of nominating petitions which would equal the combined signatures of several of his opponents . . . Dan Harper's Warren Area High School Band has an excellent program, with several outstanding feature offerings for music lovers of the area at next Thursday evening's concert . . . The one-mill tax cut for Glade Township taxpayers welcome news when most all governmental expenses are on the upgrade . . .

"The Sweet Adelines have a lot of music for your entertainment at tonight's concert at Warren Area High School auditorium . . . Matt, Kitty, Doc and Festus will be back next fall after all, so much hullabaloo following announcement of plans to drop the TV show that reconsideration restored "Gunsmoke" to the CBS-TV calendar probably on Monday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30 in the fall . . . That $18.5 capital improvement program planned at Latrobe Steel will eventually mean jobs for at least 550 more people at the Westmoreland County industrial center . . . Ten to fifteen inch snowfalls, with highway paralysis all around us early this week, and here we sat with a mere dusting of the "beautiful" and little to worry about weatherwise . . .

These are not easy to come by. Don is a big man, with something called a surprise swing. No matter what the ball does, he's surprised. He can hit a slice, a straight ball and a hook on three successive wallops, and seldom meets the other players, except on the green. The remarkable feature of this is that I'm a lousy golfer — incurable and insufferable — and finding a pigeon turned out to be a heartbreaking task. My game is in the upper nineties. As long as Cuddy remains in the 104 class, we are buddies. The moment he starts to beat the master, he is off the golf cart.

A month ago, in Florida, I played a round with Julius Boros. On a long par five, this man hit his second shot with an iron, while talking, and dropped it beside the pin. At once he made my Drop Dead list. Buddy Hackett, who looks like Buddha gone mad, hits a long ball and sometimes, when he's next to the hole, he puts a long putt. Then he says, in Cantonese: "I wasn't putting."

Mike Douglas, as you might guess, plays golf like a gentleman. So he rides alone. Alan King aims at the lighted end of the cigar in his teeth and hits the ball. Gleason is so good these days that he'll play you for the country club, and press if he's losing.

All intelligent golfers give up the game once a week. These vows are good for six days. I never do this, because I know I'm hooked. All I require to feel serene is a few nonleaky clouds and Dear Donald Cuddy. Once, I thought my family was going to buy him for me for Christmas.

I had visions of renting him out for two bucks an hour to golfers whose morale was low. Mr. C. is big, good-looking and cheerful. Every week, he is beset by the feeling that he is going to win. To guard against this fantastic revulsion, I keep score. He runs to straight sixes, even on the par threes.

That's why I say he's dependable. If Don gets too close —

The Buffalo Weather Bureau has come up with the amazing statistic that all the snow which has fallen there since 1909 would bury the city under a 390-foot deep mound, with 1909-10 recording the heaviest fall, some 126.4 inches, and 1918-19, the lowest with only 25 inches . . . That Air Force Captain, James S. You can start using those 1967 auto license stickers on Wednesday . . . Use of the multi-level rail carriers increased the American railroads' share of the motor vehicle transportation market from 9.7 per cent in 1960 to 45.7 per cent last year . . . The 1967 Auto Show which closed last night perked up interest in the new motor buggies immensely and should crystallize into some orders during the next few weeks . . . Mr. Cuddy My Golf Pigeon

The warm weekends are coming. This leads the ladies to thoughts of spring hats and a discouraging inventory of the closet. It leads men to the same closet, with another goal. They hunt golf clubs. A few weeks more and Rollo will be walking the fairways, shouting cheerful epithets at the sky.

What daddy does on a golf course is exchange one set of frustrations for another. He is a peculiar type of nut who spends hours squatting over grass, peering ahead and at his feet and doing nothing. If you watch him long enough, he will swing a club. A little white ball will trace the contour of a big banana in the sky and daddy will swear and call on God by His First name and His last.

When I am in Florida, I seek out a super nut like my friend Don Cuddy. He used to play football for the University of Miami. Later he was a reporter for the Miami Herald. Now he's a public relations expert, president of POINT. All of which is inconsequential. Mr. Cuddy is my golf pigeon.

Mike Douglas, as you might guess, plays golf like a gentleman. So he rides alone. Alan King aims at the lighted end of the cigar in his teeth and hits the ball. Gleason is so good these days that he'll play you for the country club, and press if he's losing.

HARATINE

Deals Harshly With Demos

HARRISBURG — The only trace of traditional Republicanism left in Ray Shafer is found in his Lincoln Day speeches. The Governor prolonged his "Lincoln Day" engagements through the month of February, ending the vigil with a eulogy on the improbable date of March Second in the equally improbable balliwick of the Shackamaxon Country Club in Scotch Plains, New Jersey.

While retrieving Lincoln from the Democrats — who loved to cite Honest Abe's affinity for the Common Man — Gov. Shafer also skims off a fair share of the Democratic philosophy. "Good Government," he told the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association in Philadelphia last week, "has no recourse but to establish controls when the well-being of the people is in jeopardy. To sit idly while some persons freely endanger the health and welfare of the majority would be a governmental felony of the highest order."

Among these "felonies" Gov. Shafer cites Urban Sprawl, Rape of the Land and Air and Water Pollution.

Like Governor William Scranton before him, Mr. Shafer gives clear evidence he intends to be an activist governor. For instance, moments after helping the Governor whip the Republican majority into line on the Constitutional Convention bill, the House Democratic leadership listened wide-eyed to the Governor's liberal labor proposals: wage minimums ranging from $1.40 to $1.60 and Unemployment and Workmen's Compensation ranging as high as $60, in the case of UC a leap of $15.

Could this be the same Ray Shafer who, as lieutenant governor, spearheaded Gov. Scranton's massive attack on things like the "double dip"?

As a consequence, Democrats are co-sponsoring the Shafer proposals, but reserving the right to amend the legislation before enactment. For, as one Democrat complained, "He has taken the bare campaign promises and stretched them . . . His $60 UC offer comes with a lot of loopholes."

But offer them he did. And on its face, the labor package gives a significantly more liberal image to the Governor's Republicanism.

Yet, when his audience warrants it, Governor Shafer deals harshly with the Democratic Leadership. "I am afraid," he said at the Waldorf, "the Democratic Party grew too dizzy with the overwhelming victory of 1964 and misread what the people actually were saying to them."

Back at Shackamaxon, the Governor said that if George Washington had "walked through some of the wards of Chicago, he would have turned away in disgust. . . . But Lincoln would have stayed to change things."

This is precisely the image the Governor has picked for himself. Lithe and lanky, Shafer has deep-set eyes, and a jut jaw adds to his Lincolnian physique. Along with people like Senators Percy and Hatfield, Pennsylvania's governor is using Lincoln's language "to drag" — as the Democrats often put it — "the Republican Party kicking and screaming into the 20th Century."

"Towering genius," Gov. Shafer quoted the Log Cabin Sage before Republicans gathered at New York's gilded Waldorf Astoria, "disdains a beaten path. It seeks regions hitherto unexplored."

In remoulding the traditional philosophy of his party, he centers the philosophic differences between Republicans and Democrats in the way each reacts to the growing dominance of the Federal government. "What we need," he says, "is not an anti-federal movement . . . We need a pro-state and local government movement to modernize a system that was created to do business when men didn't cruise along at 60 miles an hour, pumping three liters of nitrogen oxides, every minute, into the air we breathe."

For the moment, Mr. Shafer speaks carefully, couching his proposals in large generalities. But, when he says, "public issues are going to be with us for a long time, and are destined to increase in both number and complexity in the months and years ahead," he is hardly talking about the same world envisioned by Barry Goldwater.

"State and local government are lagging behind the onrush of new problems," he told the PMA. "But there is now bright hope that we can indeed do something dramatic about ending this dilemma."

You don't dig this? Have you ever worn tight shoes to a formal affair? Have you ever been driven home by a drunk who dozes? Have you ever had an excruciating headache at the moment that he begins to notice your flawless beauty?

Now you understand? Good. Help me to find a pigeon for Wally Lehmann. . . .

I had visions of renting him out for two bucks an hour to golfers whose morale was low. Mr. C. is big, good-looking and cheerful. Every week, he is beset by the feeling that he is going to win. To guard against this fantastic revulsion, I keep score. He runs to straight sixes, even on the par threes.

Steele-ing The Sports Scene

In Defense of Wrestling

Recently, we have received numerous comments from critics, albeit friends, on our abundance of wrestling coverage. Since the suggestions were made in a friendly manner, we will herewith present our case, also in the same air.

Old P.T. was right: you can please some of the people, etc. We don't mind listening to complaints for what we DON'T do, but to be chastised for what we DO accomplish is a new twist.

To admit that we like scholastic wrestling would be an understatement, but we have been laboring under the theory that many mat fans in the area are interested in news of the sport.

In fact, we've received more queries on the sport from grappling fanatics than complaints from the non-wrestling crowd. In response to requests, we published the results of other Section and District tourneys and were also deluged with calls from persons inquiring the outcome of the Penn State-Lehigh match.

Without rattling off a string of boring figures, we can report that wrestling is the fastest growing sport on the scholastic level in Pennsylvania. And, without seeing the official reports, we can safely state that it is the number two spectator sport in Warren, enjoying a per-game attendance mark surpassed only by football.

Its interest state-wide is uncontested, as the turn-away crowd at Altoona and the packed house at Penn State today will bear witness.

Since Warren will soon take its place among the wrestling powerhouses, we feel it imperative that the public be informed on what's taking place in other sections of the District, and the State.

What is considered to be over-reporting by the non-mat fans would not hold a candle to the space devoted to the sport in wrestling hot-beds like DuBois, Clearfield, Greenville and Lock Haven.

Wrestling news is, more and more, in constant demand. We have received numerous requests for our writeups from coaches and fans of other schools in the District and last season, following our state-wide roundup run by the Associated Press, got a call from an official in the Lancaster area inviting us to an all-wrestling banquet!

The most common complaint we've heard from coaches and fans in other towns, including several in the Section, is lack of wrestling coverage. One of the biggest offenders is a large area newspaper that will go unnamed, but whose staff will feel a pang of conscience at reading these words.

We bow to the complaint that, perhaps, we occasionally miss the boat when it comes to reporting other sports, but only if we have made an error and not if our only failure is giving that sport the same amount of space that wrestling has received.

Contrary to such public opinion, however, we don't take a back seat to other area newspapers in other sports. We make it a practice to call other papers for results we feel may be of interest here, and have been contacted in return by some papers who know we will probably have the information.

As far as quantity is concerned, we know of only one other paper in this area serving a similar circulation that carries as much sports, and most average half as much. If quality and the amount of local coverage is the question, we can report one recent issue in which every bit of two pages was local news, except for about 34 inches and that included Arthur Daley's column.

Undoubtedly, there is need for improvement in the reporting of some sports, but more often than not we are governed by a space or time problem, or both.

In addition, we have been laboring for the past month without our sports wire, accounting for the absence of such items as the NBA standings, for which we've had a few inquiries, but can happily report that the service will be continued for baseball season.

So, in conclusion, we accept chastisement for our failures and will endeavor to make improvements. The man who deludes himself with the idea that he does not make mistakes is a fool and, as long as we continue to put in between 50 and 60 hours a week at this most enjoyable job, we can take some consolation that we must be accomplishing a little.

STEELE SHAVINGS - In the same line, we've often pointed out in the past that, if your club or organization has someone feeding us the news, more will be printed. As you'll note from our poor percentage of tourney pictures, our crystal ball has not been functioning all lately.

More woe to the non-mat fans: good old John Miller came through. We have a pass for tomorrow's PIAA State Finals and will report, happily, on the outcome in Monday's edition.

Jim Gpoff, a former Erie tankman, set a Kent State record for the 200-yard freestyle with a 1:51.1 in a recent meet between the Golden Flashes and Grove City's swim team.

NCAA Cage Tourney First Round Today

Fourteen Contests Around Country; NIT Continues

By TED MEIER

The NCAA, college basketball's national championship post-season tournament, opens today with Princeton, Boston College, St. John's of New York, Western Kentucky, Toledo, Houston and Texas Western favored to win the seven first round games.

The start of the NCAA highlights the final Saturday of the regular season.

UCLA bids for its 26th straight victory and unbeaten season with Southern California the opposition. The first round of the National Invitation Tournament will be completed and NCAA tournament berths will be decided in the Big Ten, Atlantic Coast and Western Athletic Conferences.

Princeton, 23-2 and fifth-ranked nationally to UCLA in the final Associated Press poll of the season, plays West Virginia, 19-8 in the doubleheader at Blacksburg, Va. St. John's 22-3, puts its 10-game winning streak on the line against Temple, 20-7, in the second game.

Eastern College, 19-2, is pitted against Connecticut, 17-6, in a night game at Kingston, R.I. Western Kentucky, 23-2, goes against Dayton, 21-5, in the feature of a night doubleheader at Lexington, Ky. Toledo, 23-1, and Virginia Tech, 18-6, meet in the opener.

Houston, 23-3, encounters New Mexico State, 14-10, and Texas Western, 20-5, tangles with Seattle, 18-7, in a night twin bill at Fort Collins, Colo., that rounds out the NCAA program.

The seven winners advance to next week's regionals at College Park, Md., Evanston, Ill., Lawrence, Kan., and Corvallis, Ore., along with Tennessee, Southern Methodist, Louisville, Kansas, UCLA, U. of Pacific, and the Big Ten, ACC and WAC representatives. The latter nine drew first round byes.

Four games, split into afternoon and night doubleheaders, complete the first round of the NIT in New York, Providence, 20-6, battles Memphis State, 17-3, and Syracuse, 20-5, tackles New Mexico, 18-7, in the Matinee twin bill. Marquette, 18-3, plays Tulsa, 19-7, and Utah State, 20-5, faces Rutgers, 19-6, at night. Marshall and Southern Illinois won the opening NIT games Thursday.

Three games, Purdue at Indiana, Northwestern at Michigan State, Iowa at Michigan, will decide the torrid Big Ten race. Indiana and Michigan State are tied for first at 8-4 with Iowa one game back at 8-5.

If Indiana and Michigan State

both win, Indiana will go to the NCAA because Michigan State has appeared in the tourney more recently than the Hoosiers. However, if both lose, Iowa can gain a triple tie by beating Michigan and also land the berth. The Hawkeyes haven't been to the NCAA in more than 10 years. Indiana went in 1958 and Michigan State in 1959.

The ACC champion will be determined in the final of the championship tourney at Greensboro, N.C., between the winners of Friday night's semifinals that paired Duke against South Carolina and North Carolina against Wake Forest. The defeated finalist will play in the NIT.

Wyoming and Brigham Young finished in a tie as co-champions of the WAC last week and will meet at Salt Lake City in a playoff for the NCAA berth. The winner gets the dubious honor of facing top-ranked UCLA and Lew Alcindor at Corvallis next Friday night.

Texas Western is the defending national champion, but most everyone expects that UCLA will regain the throne and make it three national titles in four years.

Junior League Contests Off

All YMCA Junior Basketball League contests have been postponed until further notice, Ken Hale announced yesterday.

The cancellation is due to a schedule conflict at the Warren Area High School gymnasium, site of hoop contests in recent weeks. The Y's own gym is undergoing renovation.

Patrick Beats Ryun To Set Half Record

DETROIT (AP) - Villanova's Dave Patrick ran famed Jim Ryun of Kansas into the boards and set a world indoor half-mile record of 1:48.3 in the third NCAA indoor track meet last night.

Patrick spurred into the lead at the start and Ryun, who two hours earlier had to qualify for the mile final today, never had a chance. Patrick's 1:48.3 clocking bettered the existing 880-indoor record of 1:49.0 set by Tom Von Ruden, former Oklahoma State star, at Louisville, Ky., Feb. 18.

Ryun ran a 1:48.3 half mile in a dual meet against Oklahoma State on Feb. 23, but the record was not recognized because it was made on a dirt track.

Ryun tried to stay with the winging Patrick early in the race running 20 yards behind in second. Then the Kansas comet faded clear back to fifth in the six-man field. Ryun tried to make his move on the next to the last lap in the 11-lap grind, but he just couldn't catch Patrick who won by 15 yards.

Patrick ran the first quarter in a blistering 52.1, literally killing off the field and then sped the final quarter in 56.9. Ryun was timed in 1:50.7, barely taking second place from Notre Dame's Pete Farrell, who was clocked in 1:51.1.

Fourth was Rikkey Poole of Wisconsin, timed in 1:52.5. Fifth went to another Wisconsin runner, Ken Latkoof in 1:52.7.

"It was a terrific thrill," said Patrick. "I didn't think anybody could catch me, but I looked around in the middle of the third turn for home, watching for Ryun."

"I knew there wasn't anybody back of me for a long, long time."

It was the first track encounter between Patrick and Ryun. Ryun appeared weary almost throughout the entire half-mile. In qualifying for the mile two hours earlier, Ryun had to uncork a surge from far behind to win his heat in 4:08, slow enough to indicate he was trying to save his reserve for the half-mile final.

During the afternoon, Ryun had to run an 880 qualifying test which was held about four hours before his own mile trial.

The first championship of the two-day NCAA at Ohio Arena went to Connecticut's Garry Yurek, with a record loss in the 35-pound welter throw.

Yurek, tipped the weight 61 feet, 3 1/2 inches, almost three feet better than the throw record set by Bob Mead of Manhattan who also was first contested last year.

EXPECTED TO PLACE HIGH AT CORRY

Warren Y's Swimmers In District Meet Today

Warren figures to place high in all three divisions at the Northwest District Swimming meet today at Corry.

According to coach Bob Hammerbeck, Warren stands its best chance of winning in the Cadet division. He said that it is very possible they could win the Junior class and also place very high in the Prep division.

The meet is at the Corry YMCA. There will be no admission charged and there is a good seating capacity. Diving starts at 10 a.m. with the swimming beginning at noon.

In the Junior division, 14 and under, the best Warren has is Mark Schaeffer. He will be the favorite in the 40-yard freestyle and the co-favorite with teammate Mike Voigt in the 100-yard freestyle.

Mike Doherty in the 200-yard freestyle would have to be considered a strong contender while Darrell Pierce will get the nod as favorite in the 100-yard backstroke.

The Junior division has an undefeated team in the freestyle relay. The team is composed of Doherty, Schaeffer, Pierce and Voigt.

Warren has a record of 5-2 in this division. They have lost to Corry and Jamestown, who also have 5-2 marks. The best record in the division belongs to Erie who has a 6-1 record. Warren is the only team who has beaten them.

Hammerbeck said that Erie would have to be the favorite, but any of the four teams could win it.

The Prep class, which is probably the weakest for Warren, posted a 4-3 record. The favorites would have to be Erie and Jamestown.

A strong contender in both the 80-yard medley relay and the 40-yard butterfly will be Robbie Roth.

Dan Pierce is picked to finish high in the 40-yard breaststroke.

Barry Wisner is a good diver and has a chance to finish high in the Prep division competition.

Sugar Bowl Hosts First Scholastic Tournament Today

The first Annual Warren County High School Bowling Tournament for boys will be held at the Sugar Bowl Lanes in Sugar Grove today. Bowling will begin at 10 a.m. with 8 teams representing the schools of the county.

A trophy will be awarded to the team with the highest total. It is hoped that this tournament can become an annual affair.

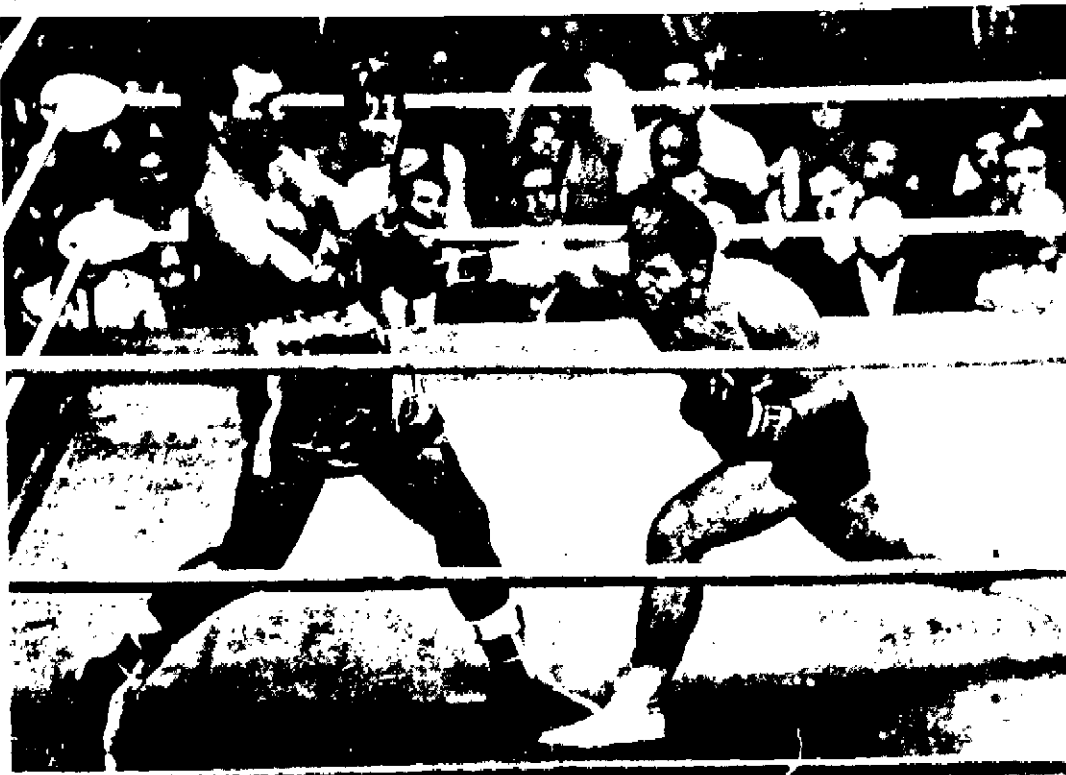

Three Tied In Eastern Tournament

By LAWRENCE MASGASAK
PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Defending champion Lehigh, Penn State and Navy were tied yesterday with 21 points apiece at the end of the quarterfinal round of the 93rd Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Championships at the Palestra.

More important, Lehigh advanced nine men, Penn State seven and Navy five to today's semifinals.

Lehigh won two of the three head-to-head matches with Penn State, considered the Engineer's strongest rival. Defending 130-pound champ Joe Peritore of Lehigh topped Craig Freas of Penn State 9-2, and the Engineers' Mike Kishel, outpointed Penn State's Dave Spinda 12-7 in the 145-pound class. The Nittany Lions' Matt Kline outpointed Lehigh's Bob Hartenstein 5-2 in the 160-pound class.

The other defending champions, Mike Caruso in the 123-pound class, and John Rushatz, in the 167-pound class, both of Lehigh remained undefeated.

SWINGING FROM THE HEELS

Young Jerry Quarry throws a long right that veteran Brian London backed away from in their fight Thursday night. Quarry won his 22nd fight by a unanimous decision. He fought in flurries and managed to connect on enough wild throws to score the 10-round win. London is on the comeback trail following a loss to heavyweight champion Cassius Clay. Thursday night's fight was held in Los Angeles.

NBA Commissioner Sets Tuesday Strike Deadline

By TED SMITH
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Walter Kennedy gave rebellious National Basketball Association players yesterday

until noon next Tuesday to agree to participate in the post-season playoffs under threat of calling them off.

Simultaneously, he offered further negotiations over the issues, chief of which is the players' demand for a pension of $600 monthly for 10-year men.

NBA owners have offered approximately $300. The present pension is about $200 monthly.

Lawrence Fleisher, counsel for the players, told newspapermen that the players were willing to meet with the NBA owners "any time over the weekend but Kennedy told me he didn't think this would be possible before Tuesday."

Fleisher added that "there is no change in the players' position." The players have threatened to strike unless their demands are met.

"The players are even willing to fly here this weekend," said Fleisher.

"I hope we can sit down and talk."

If the playoffs are canceled, the $280,000 players' pool will evaporate.

"The owners and the players have substantial obligations to the public in the NBA playoffs now scheduled to commence on March 21," Kennedy said in a telegram to Fleisher.

"The owners expect the players to honor those obligations, to comply with their contracts, and to participate in the playoffs."

"The owners must be advised whether the players intend to live up to their contracts and participate in the playoffs."

"Unless such commitment is received by noon on Tuesday, March 14, it will be impossible to hold the playoffs."

Kennedy pointed out that the team owners had contracts with arenas, as well as the cost of printing and distributing playoff tickets, to consider.

State Playoff Teams Have Perfect Marks

HARRISBURG (AP) — Of 18 teams remaining in the PIAA interdistrict high school basketball playoffs, four have not tasted defeat thus far this season.

Boasting unblemished records are Chester, Ambridge, Panther Valley and Williamsport. Upper Dauphin lost its first game, 49-58, to Darby Twp. Thursday.

Going into the game, Upper Dauphin had won 24 straight. Al Bowman has been the leading scorer, but the team has been helped by a strong overall offensive punch.

Thursday night Jim Straub took scoring honors, however, by netting 24 points.

Chester (25-0) suffered its last setback in the Class A championship game a year ago when the Clippers bowed to Pittsburgh Schenley, 74-64. Schenley, making another bid for the state title, has lost to two out-of-state rivals.

Ambridge (24-0) won its first section title in 43 years and went on to become champion of the powerful WPIAL. Key to the team's success was the acquisition of Dick DeVenzio, who moved to Ambridge from Springdale when his father changed coaching assignments. Williamsport, defending state Class C champion, has not lost a game in an all-win season thus far this year but went undefeated last year. The Blue Pirates have won their last 50 games. Rich Tate is the top scorer.

B and C Finals At Harrisburg

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association announced Thursday that the Class B and C finals in the interdistrict basketball playoffs would be held March 17 at the Farm Show Arena here.

Theodore R. Wagner Jr., executive director, said the B and C games would be played as a doubleheader with the first game starting at 7 p.m. and the second at 8:30 p.m.

The PIAA earlier had scheduled the Class A championship game for the night of March 18 in the Farm Show Arena. The B and C games originally were to have been played on March 18 at different sites.

County Sports Veterans Meet

The Youngsville-Irvine branch of the Warren County Old-Timers Association will meet tomorrow at 2:30 on the second floor of the Youngsville American Legion. The meeting will be conducted by Dick Pearce, acting president.

All "old-time" athletes (over 35) from any sport now residing around the Western section of Warren County are invited to attend. Communities included are Sugar Grove, Chandlers Valley, Wrightsville, Bear Lake, Garland, Columbus, Spring Creek, Grand Valley, Irvine, Pittsfield, Tidoute, West Hickory and Endeavor.

Sucker Fishing Favorite Of Pennsylvania Anglers

HARRISBURG — If a census was taken on the number of fishermen who practice various types of the angling sport in Pennsylvania, sucker fishermen would comprise a surprisingly large group. Caught in spring, autumn and winter when their flesh is firm and sweet, suckers, properly prepared, are a delicious food fish.

Most of our warm water streams containing large numbers of suckers are usually easily accessible to fishermen. Whether an angler wishes to fish with rod and reel or with the old fashioned cane pole and sturdy line, his chances of making a catch are equally good.

Still fishing for suckers is perhaps the most cosmopolitan form of angling. It appeals not only to many fishermen who also enjoy fishing for bass and other game fish, but to the boy who follows the sport with a can of worms, cut pole and heavy line.

Fishing for suckers also has another appeal—it is restful and there is in the chill atmosphere along the stream, a fine chance to relax, to enjoy the comradeship of other fishermen, often with a driftwood fire burning nearby. In those mild days of March and early April, when the call of trout streams becomes increasingly strong and the season approaches, many anglers find in sucker fishing an opportunity to answer that strong fishing urge coincidental with early spring.

The sucker is by nature a bottom feeder, and as such it has at times been accused of destroying the spawn of other fish. From an economic angle, suckers probably rank with our most important fishes. So general is their range, that waters in most sections of the state yield thousands of them annually and they consequently are an item of food on many household menus.

Several kinds of suckers live in Pennsylvania waters, but they all have the same forked tails and small, puckered, rubbery mouths beneath their snouts. These mouths can be extended to press against the stream bottom and suck up small items of food, giving the fish its name.

In March the suckers begin moving up from lakes and larger streams into the creeks and runs to spawn. They often gather in large numbers in the deeper holes at the mouths of small streams, below riffles, or below obstacles such as dams or waterfalls. Here the early-bird fisherman can have a ball.

No special equipment is needed for sucker fishing. A regular casting or spin-casting outfit is usually used, but anglers who want the most sport per fish are even using light spinning tackle. A few hooks, sinkers, and a can of worms complete the outfit.

A sinker large enough to hold the bait in the current is usually attached to the end of the line, and the baited hook is permitted to dangle on a bottom. The rod is placed in a rod holder (usually a forced stick pushed into the shore and the slack taken out of the line. Many fishermen split a cigarette-sized piece of worm and clip it to the line. It is a good idea to make a yourself comfortable. Be sure to dress warmly. A folding camp stool or box rugged up as a seat, and hot soup or a hot drink in a vacuum bottle are extras that will make the waiting more enjoyable.

A good sucker run is worth the wait, and at times you can have your hands full with the tugging fish, rebaiting your hooks, and tossing them out again.

Warm Water Fishing Season Out Tuesday

HARRISBURG — The fishing season for warm water species in Pennsylvania's inland waters closes at midnight Tuesday, March 14, according to W. W. Britton, chief law enforcement officer of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

Bass, both largemouth and smallmouth; pickerel; white muskellunge and northern pike are included on the list of protected fish. The catching of pickerel, walleye, muskellunge and northern pike will again become legal May 6. Bass season remains closed until June 17.

Bass and walleye fishing, however, will again be legal in the Susquehanna River downstream from the U.S. Rt. 30 bridge south to the Maryland

See Line April 1.

Fishing is permitted year around for sunfish (all species including bluegills), yellow perch, crappies, rock bass, catfish, suckers and eels.

Britton listed the following trout streams open to sucker fishing (worm fishing only) from March 14 to the opening of the 1967 trout season:

BEDFORD COUNTY — Koon Lake from the point or "Y" upstream on the right branch including the tributary stream (Beaver Run) and upstream on the left branch to a wire across Everts Creek.

ABC-TV Will Televis Games

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Company announced the signing yesterday of a $4.5 million contract to televise the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City, Oct. 12-17.

Roone Arledge, vice president and executive producer of the network, called it the most expensive color television underwriting broadcast history.

He said it would be viewed by 100 million people—the largest audience ever.

In addition to the Mexican Games, ABC also will televise the Winter Games at Grenoble, France, Feb. 6-18. For these rights the network paid $2 million.

Sanders Takes Two-Stroke Citrus Open Tournery Lead

By RON SPEER

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Doug Sanders, adding driving distance to his always-delicate putting touch, fired a second straight 66 in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament yesterday for a 2-stroke lead over a fast field at the halfway mark.

The surging Georgian, playing Florida courses like he owns them, knocked 10 strokes off par on the Rio Pinar course with his 36 hole total of 132 which broke him out of a first round deadlock with Dean Refram.

Refram, bantam-weight belter who has never won on the pro tour, added a 68 to his opening 66 for second at 134, two strokes in front of Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

Palmer blew a golden opportunity to move up in the $115,000 tournament, missing putts of three feet on his last two holes, bogeying both. He also drove into a lake but salvaged a 69 with the help of a 25-foot approach shot which he sank for a birdie.

Player also had putting problems, missing birdie tries of six feet or less four times, but he connected on a 25-footer and a 10-footer in his 69, which kept him tied with Palmer at 136.

Big Jack Nicklaus, playing with Sanders and barely out-driving the flamboyant leader, shot a 69 for 140 total on the par-71 layout.

Sanders said he is belting the ball 20 yards farther from the tee now than he was six weeks ago because he changed his swing "because I could not get that ball out there. You can't score when you have to baby it around the course."

Trying for his fifth pro title in three years in Florida and fresh from victory in the Doral Open last Sunday, Sanders bogeyed only one hole—when he missed an 18-inch putt—and scored six birdies, five coming in perfect putts of more than 10 feet.

Refram whose first two rounds are the best in his wretched six years on the tour, twice drove into the woods but he recovered both times. He sank a 20-foot birdie putt with his croquet-like putter on the 18th hole to hold second place.

Packed behind Player and Palmer at 137 were Jack Rule, Randy Glover, Julius Boros, Bruce Devlin and Tom Weiskopf, who had a 65, best round of the tournament.

Progress Continues At Blueberry Course

Progress was the report from all quarters at the Board meeting this week at Blueberry Hill Golf Club.

Chuck Irvin, course superintendent, reported that rough grading and tree removal for the balance of the holes is completed. Also, the heavy earthmoving between the second and third fairways, the triangle at third, fourth and fifth holes and the rough on the North side of the fifth fairway will be completed this week.

Jim Lawson has a crew working in the club house. The porch should be ready for the opening of the season along with a few other projects.

Harold C. Grey, landscape architect, of Fahringer, McCarty, Grey & Associates, attended the meeting to give advice on planning for the additional lots on the south and east sides of the property. Mr. Grey planned the lot layout for the Hillcrest Development in North Warren.

Joe Scheerer, Membership chairman, outlined the plans for 1967. Membership fees are the same as last year with the addition of a ladies individual class. The fees are as follows: Men's $90.00, Ladies $60.00, Family $130.00, Junior $45.00, Non-resident single $60.00 and Family $90.00.

George Eberhardt, Golf Chairman has his committee working on the events for this year. There are two big changes so far for 1967. The Ladies League will play on Tuesday this season. The Men's League will be a membership League. Matches can be played anytime during the week. No evening or evenings will be set aside for the League play. Wednesday will be men's day, as in previous years.

This should be a nice weekend to take a ride out to Blueberry to inspect the work in progress. The public is welcome at any time.

Wake Forest opened up its lead to 44-36 in the opening minutes of the second half. Miller then went into action, scoring 19 points in just 12 minutes. His three-point play put the Tar Heels ahead to stay at 59-56 with 10 minutes left to play.

Bill Bunting added 17 points and Bob Lewis 15 for North Carolina. Paul Long led Wake Forest with 23 points.

Nats Protest AL'S Double-Pinch Rule

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Washington Senators' management wants no part of the American League spring training experiment of using the same pinch hitter twice in a game.

General Manager George Selkirk feels so strongly opposed to the plan he has made an official protest to league President Joe Cronin.

The Senators will not participate in the experiment and will not give consent to have it used against them, he says.

Selkirk asserts he has six other clubs on his side. He says only the Chicago White Sox, which began the experiments; the Baltimore Orioles and the Kansas City Athletics, in addition to Cronin, are for the idea.

Selkirk and Washington Manager Gil Hodges believe the change would help only the clubs with aging stars, such as New York with Mickey Mantle, Detroit with Al Kaline and Baltimore with Frank Robinson.

Selkirk, who says the change doesn't stand a chance of being written into the rules, is opposed to the experiment in spring training because, he maintains, the development of youngsters will be hindered.

"Say we're trying out a kid like Dick Such or John Shew (two young Washington pitchers) and he gets into a bases-loaded situation and the other club brings up Mantle to pinch hit. Then an inning or two later the bases are loaded again and here comes Mantle again as a pinch hitter," he said.

"What's this going to prove? It's not going to help the kid pitcher. It's an unnatural situation. There will be nothing like it in a ball game, so why should we do it in spring training?"

Cincy Hurlers Blank Phillies

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds blanked the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-0, in the training camp season's first exhibition game here yesterday.

Jim Maloney worked the first three innings for the Reds, allowing only one hit, Ernie Broglio and rookie Darrell Osteen finished the pitching chores, allowing six more hits between them.

The Atlanta Braves have added golf carts to their spring training camp equipment, but for the managerial staff only. Above, Bill Hitchcock, manager of the Braves, is at the controls with coach Lum Harris at his side. The comment added to the rear of the vehicle brought on some ribbing.

Leniency Granted Father of Seven, Others Sentenced

A 23-year-old Warren County man, the father of seven children, two of his own and five step-children, was given another chance yesterday to continue his present good behavior and "be man enough to avoid any trouble in the future."

William (Eddie) Skinner, RD 1, Pittsfield, paroled Feb. 24 from the federal penitentiary in Lewisburg and returned to Warren County to face a forgery charge before Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr., had imposition of sentence suspended and he was placed on probation until June of 1971. He was also ordered to pay costs and make restitution.

The probation period, the judge said, coincides with the length of parole. If the federal parole is lifted, the Warren County probation will also be lifted.

Prior to passing sentence, the jurist told Skinner he had no reason for trusting his behavior in the past, but that since last year "things had happened to the defendant which may very well change his life completely."

Federal prison officials had reported Skinner made an excellent record at Lewisburg and took advantage of all opportunities provided.

The charges against the man stemmed from a series of checks forged in March and April of 1965 totaling $825.

A grand jury approved an indictment and Skinner yesterday pleaded guilty. He told the Times-Mirror and Observer he expected to go back to work next week since his former employer was willing to take him back.

Evelyn Adams, of 330 Main st., Tidioute, charged with worthless checks, also had imposition of sentence suspended, placed on probation for six months and ordered to pay costs. Restitution on the checks, passed by the defendant at Jamesway, Inc., North Warren, in the amount of $116.50 on Dec. 24, 1965, had been made, according to District Attorney Samuel F. Bonavita. According to testimony by Sheriff D. E. Allen Jr., the checks had been returned to the shopping center by the Tidioute branch of Warren National Bank with the notation the account had been closed since May 14, 1965.

James Sanderson, temporary address 1240 Conewago ave., here working on a construction job, yesterday entered a plea of nolo contendere to a charge of driving under the influence.

Sanderson was arrested by borough police officers at 3:10 a.m. January 26, when police observed the Sanderson vehicle proceeding in an erratic manner on Conewago ave., according to testimony.

He was sentenced to pay $120 fine, costs and serve four days in jail with credit for one. For personal reasons, Sanderson asked the court to be permitted to start serving his jail sentence at 5:30 p.m. Friday, March 17. The court agreed and the defendant will be released on Sunday, March 19.

Auto Hits Two Poles As Driver Falls Asleep

A 40-year-old Warren County man was treated and released at Warren General Hospital yesterday for an eyebrow laceration suffered in a one-car traffic accident which occurred at 4:45 a.m.

State police troopers Max J. Bizzak and William C. Dudinack are continuing their investigation of the mishap on I.R. 61038.

According to police, a car driven by Orrie Vanord, RD 1, Russell, was traveling east when the operator fell asleep at the wheel. The car, police said, crossed the center of the highway, struck an iron pole on the north berm, traveled another 150 feet, went off the highway again and struck a telephone pole. The Vanord vehicle continued on another 65 feet and stopped, blocking both lanes of traffic.

Vanord was taken to WGH by the Russell ambulance, where the eye laceration was sutured. Total damage was listed at $400.

Wallace Death Due To Fumes

The cause of death of Robert Lloyd Wallace, a Warren native, has been determined by Dr. Donald J. Furman, Warren State Hospital pathologist and an FBI laboratory report.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Richard E. Hegerty, who investigated the incident, said a Wallace's death was due to asphyxiation through carbon monoxide poisoning.

A heater in the victim's rented room at 63 Mohawk ave., according to Hegerty, was found to be faulty.

Wallace, the son of Samuel and Virginia Wallace, of Kinzua Heights, RD Bradford (Warren County) was found dead in the room, which he had occupied for only two weeks, at 6:10 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 8. Hegerty stated the victim had apparently succumbed sometime between 2:30 and 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 5.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

The elections are underway again. I don't mean the county and borough elections. They're old hat already. I mean the Quadricennial Coup which determines the course of history in our nation.

We're not taking any bets, those of us who have survived past performances. The truth of the matter is that it's neither too early, nor too late to tell: it's that sort of limbo where everything's being lined up just right but no one's admitting it.

The other day, for instance, Mike Mansfield entered a complete history of the Democratic Party into the Congressional Record. It recorded the theft of an entire presidential election by the Republicans in 1876, when Sam Tilden was nominated to run against the Grant machine. His platform was anti-corruption. The Mansfield document claims the South, taken over by federal troops under Republican control, was rigged.

This is 1967, the year before Leap Year, and that's traditionally a time for constructing the mud pits and for blazing the trails for 1968. You heap all you can in the campaign box so it will be nice and handy when you need it in a pinch.

By the way, did you know we taxpayers shell out about $90 per page for the Congressional Board? It's going to be a long, hard year.

The Sheldon family would appreciate any information concerning the rabbit which was highly treasured by the child.

Would Extend Lines

Allegheny Airlines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to expedite its application for extension of its present route system from Huntington, W. Va., Ashland, Ky., to Nashville and Memphis, Tenn., via Lexington, Ky. Allegheny had previously asked the Board to consider this application as part of the Western Tennessee Service Investigation. This motion was denied by the board.

Discuss Vo-Tech Program

On the agenda for the meeting of the Warren County School District Board of Education next Monday evening, will be further discussion of vocational-technical education, which was considered at the February meeting.

It is expected that representatives from the industrial division of the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce will attend, who will provide information which the board had requested from that group.

Also there will probably be appointments of members of the board to serve on several authorities, to fill terms of former members that have expired.

Consideration will be given by the board to a request by the Warren County Education Association, the teachers' organization, concerning review of the recently adopted salary schedules.

Other matters of routine business will be considered by the board for action.

Zonta Club Offering $500 Scholarship

The Zonta Club of Warren has announced that a $500 scholarship will again be awarded this year to a young woman graduate of a Warren County high school.

A committee of Zontians has been appointed to select the recipient on the basis of financial need, probability of success in her chosen field, scholastic standing and character.

This scholarship may be used by a girl who plans to enter a recognized technical or trade school, business school, nursing school or college. The applicant must have been accepted by the school of her choice.

The name of the winner will be announced early in June and payment made in time for enrollment in the school.

The deadline for submitting applications is April 13 and candidates will be interviewed May 7. Miss Jean G. Steele is chairman of the Zonta Club scholarship committee.

Sonic Boom Startles Local Area

What seemed to be an explosion occurred early Friday morning, and Warren borough police officer Willard H. Zerbe, who was at the moment at the foot of Market st., checked his watch and pinpointed the time as exactly 4:05 a.m.

At first it was thought it might be the factory or some other industrial plant. However, a check indicated that it was probably a jet breaking the sound barrier.

Earlier in the week there were stories in newspapers warning residents of southwestern Pennsylvania that armed forces air exercises might cause such sonic booms, and assuring people they need not be alarmed should this occur.

Apparently, some formation skimmed over the air space in this northwestern corner of Pennsylvania, and caused the disturbance that jarred houses, and reportedly shook some doors open.

THE CHROMATICS, the latest and newest of the Sweet Adeline quartets will be among those who will help soothe and stimulate you tonight with their smooth harmonies at the four annual Sweet Adeline concert "The Shamrocks and Shillelaghs". Though a new combination, all four are experienced artists and have been members of other first-rate quartets. Sweetie Joyce Hishman, tenor, and the others from left to right are Florence Stevenson, bass, Beverly Petersen, alto, and Sue Houston, lead. The curtain time is 8:15 p.m. at the High School auditorium. In the first part of the program, among the songs to be featured will be that loveliest of Irish ballads "Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Loo-Ral", so soft and sweet, then the rousing McNamara's Band with choreography by Penny B. and their more of that tender Irish singing: Rosie O'Grady, Penny O'Neil, Pili Take You Home Again, Kathleen—this opening act is nostalgic enough to make you long for the Emerald Isle, no matter if there isn't a drop of its proud blood in your veins. Mrs. Mild Irish Rose, and more to come in this first half of the program. The second half is more formal, with the chorus appearing for the first time in the new ensembles which were made up of a few members whose talents also include a dexterous wielding of scissors, needle and thread. So, if you haven't got a good ticket yet, they will be sold tonight at the door at 50¢. Besides the Sweet Adelines, you'll hear international champions The Quartettes from Racine, Wisc.; The Keynotes of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., and our own Mischief Makers of the Warren Barbershop. And the evening doesn't end when the curtain falls—there's the Afterglow to which all are invited.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Before our younger daughter married I had a strong suspicion that her fiancé was a homosexual. He had none of the effeminate mannerisms that people generally identify with this condition but his friends were all notorious homos. I told my daughter of my fears and asked her why a person would run with a crowd like that unless he was one of them. Finally she said, "I have first-hand knowledge that he is normal." Her answer was both a blow and a relief.

Last week (after six months of marriage) my daughter tearfully confided that her husband has almost no physical interest in her and that he is out five nights a week with his strange friends.

What does this sound like to you? What is the solution? If he is a homosexual can he be cured? SHATTERED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It sounds as if your daughter's husband is bisexual and that he prefers his male friends to his wife.

The chances for "curing" a homosexual are slim, even when the sick one wants desperately to live a normal life. If he prefers to be with members of his own sex, the chances for a cure are zero. Your daughter should have a frank talk with her husband and discuss the possibility of an annulment.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I dated a widower for a year and grew very fond of him. There was ever and again a feeling was mutual.

Three months ago he was transferred to a job 250 miles from here. He drove back every other weekend and alternate weekends I took the bus to see him. We spoke intermittently on the telephone.

Yesterday he telephoned to say he is getting married. I first I thought he was kidding but it soon became clear that he was serious. He swears that he is not in love with the woman but he says he can tolerate her. She has a few relatives and is well fixed. I asked how he could marry a woman he didn't love and he replied, "If things don't work out I'll go to separate ways and I won't be hurt."

I am trying hard to keep from falling to pieces over the shock. What do you make of this? STUNNED

DEAR STUNNED: Men who get married suddenly always have a grand assortment of "excuses" for their friends, former sweethearts, and even themselves. The man is marrying the woman because he thinks he sees some social and financial advantages. He probably does not love her, but then he did not love YOU either, so cheer up. You came off better than she did.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My "problem" is with my husband. I compared with the problems most people write to you about it has caused so much trouble in our family. I would like to hear it. Six people are not speaking to each other because of this.

When a person returns to a town where he is well known, should he telephone his relatives and say "hello" or should he assume that his relatives will know he is in town and call him if they want to see him? FUP FLYING

DEAR FUR: The person who goes to a town where he is well known to visit should write in advance to friends and relatives he wishes to see or he should let them know when he arrives. The visitor who expects people to learn he is in town and call him is rather arrogant.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should You? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Dos and Don'ts" enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Hints From Heloise

Cleaning Magic

DEAR HELOISE

After working seven years with a commercial and residential cleaning firm I believe I have the solution to cleaning smoked fireplaces.

Most stores sell what is called art gum erasers. These are ordinarily used to erase charcoal drawings.

Buy yourself a couple and just start erasing. These erasers work especially well on porous rock fronts. On smoother stone or brick fireplaces, after using the art gum and getting all of the smoke off that is possible, it can then be washed with a strong solution of tri-sodium phosphate. We use one-half cup to one gallon of water.

Mickey E. Hood

Well, by golly, it works. However, I have just quit cleaning ours. I learned to open the damper properly, how to use various woods and fire starters that cause the least amount of smoke, etc.

Isn't that jolly?

Heloise P.S. One thing about it, folks, if you've got a little smoke above the hearth, it shows you use and enjoy that fireplace!

DEAR HELOISE:

For adults who want a little added flavor to dry cereals, try sprinkling a teaspoon of instant coffee over the cereal before adding the milk.

It's very tasty and is a welcome change to the old routine.

Confidence. Every good salesman knows that the mark of a good product or service is the customer's confidence in it. For example, how many times have you turned on your faucet in the dark at night and taken a drink of water? That's confidence. How many times have you stepped into your shower and turned the spigot without thinking that perhaps the water wouldn't flow? You knew it would — and that's confidence. In fact, how many times do you use water during the day without giving a thought to its purity, clarity and abundance? That's confidence of the highest order. Members will give a special "Spring Mission" offering to expand the denomination's mission program which is already active in 189 countries of the world, said Pastor Richard Meier in announcing the special services.

Although one of the smaller Protestant religious denominations numerically, Seventh-day Adventists maintain one of the largest foreign mission programs of all religious faiths. Every two days three new missionaries leave "home" to serve for the Adventist church in foreign lands.

"The cry heard years ago that the foreign missionary destroys the quaint culture of jungle-bound natives is largely a thing of the past today," observed Pastor Meier in commenting on the special services set for his church. "The medical missionary, the agricultural missionary, and the carpenter missionary have, along with their gospel-giving, brought new vistas of material as well as spiritual hope to those to whom they have gone."

According to Pastor Meier some 10,500 Seventh-day Adventist missionaries have been sent to foreign lands since 1900. About 3,000 are currently working in foreign lands where nearly 1,100 different languages are spoken.

OUR CHANGING WORLD

NEW YORK (AP) — The map-making firm of Hammond incorporated reports that in the last eight years 34 brand new countries have been formed, 15 countries have changed their names and 32 countries have had international boundary changes while 58 others have had internal boundary changes.

The company has hired additional personnel to keep its maps and globes up to date—and a computer, to register the more than 1,400 topographical additions and corrections and more than 2,500 city and town name changes necessary for its 1967 atlases.

County-Wide House Number Program Set

ERIE — Erie County moved toward becoming the first county in Pennsylvania with a systematic house-numbering and street-naming program Thursday with approval of the plan by the County Planning Commission.

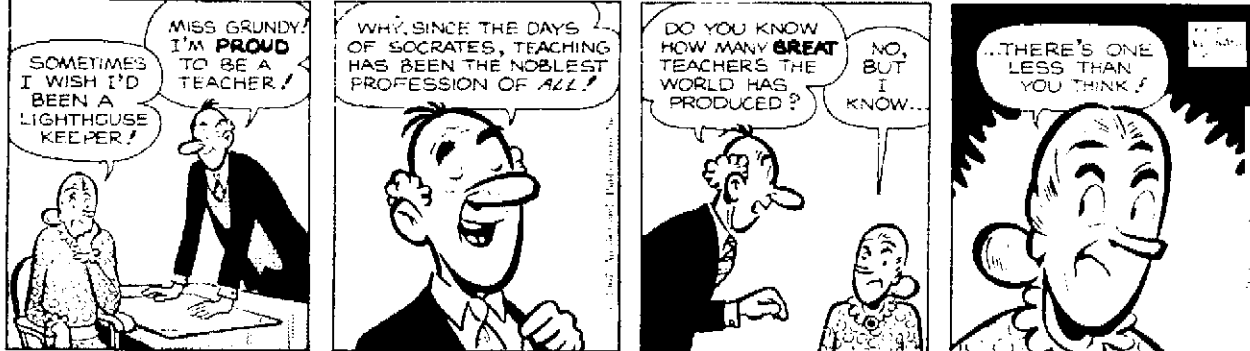

County Planning Director Chris Capotis emphasized the commission will meet soon with the Erie County Boroughs and Township Supervisors Association and postmasters throughout the county to ask their support of the program before moving ahead with it.

Tentatively, the county-wide program will be handled by the Sanborn Map Co. The cost is estimated at $8,000, which has been included in the planning commission's 1967 budget.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.
FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1967
ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — You may have to slow down now. This does not mean you are stagnating. A period of rest will revive your energies for brisker action, refresh your mind, let you see things you'd otherwise miss.
TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Especially favored under an auspicious Venus: Domestic interests, romance and artistic pursuits. But stress accuracy, poise in action.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — A clean sweep, a new deal, another break — call it what you will, it is here to take and make good use of, with your versatility, determination and ingenuity.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — You should have little trouble now in obtaining the attention and cooperation you need. Especially favored: Travel, romance, domestic interests.
LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Avoid haste. You have plenty of time to handle responsibilities, obligations. Heed the suggestions of loved ones. They could prove extremely valuable.
VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Submerge emotions and permit ideas to nurture, grow. Accomplish with dispatch and efficiency, but avoid reckless haste. Set your pace deliberately, after reviewing all situations.
LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Mixed planetary influences. Orient self carefully. A good period for gathering knowledge and imparting it in the right places. Act vigorously but without undue aggression.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — You normally aspire to a position of leadership and inspire others with respect for their particular abilities. Here is a brand-new chance to put over a project or even a "small" task in tip-top fashion.
SAGITTARIUS (November 24 to December 21) — Excellent Jupiter influences prevail. An encouraging period. Stress your self-confidence, powers of concentration, and be patient for those results which will come more easily if you remain unperturbed.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Partnerships, business, personal life are all generously influenced. You, who take responsibility seriously, have fine opportunities now. Be realistic in all things.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Avoid a tendency toward unconventionality. Don't join those who are indiscreet. In fact, you will be expected to show the way toward sensible thinking and acting.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Here is a dandy chance for you to do a little more than asked and be highly rewarded. Don't pass the "extras" up — not for reward's sake, but to make a substantial stride in the right direction.
YOU BORN TODAY lean toward the intellectual, and desire quality in all things—most especially in your friendships. You are not snobbish, but have a high appreciation of learning; also lofty ambitions—which you CAN attain, no matter how humble your beginnings. You are a most amiable and genial companion — and people like you. You are sympathetic to the unfortunate and will spare no effort to help them.

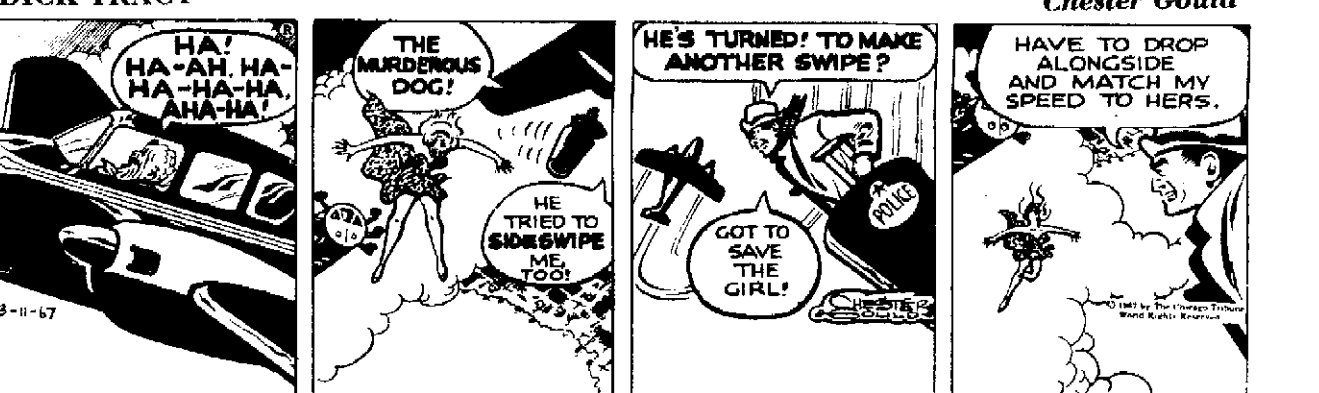

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

INTestinal angina
Abdominal angina occurs when the wall of the stomach does not receive sufficient blood. The colicky spasm is comparable to the distress that occurs in the heart of those with angina pectoris. The difference is that intestinal angina follows a meal when the gastric pouch works harder to digest food. The pain of heart disease is precipitated by exertion or excitement.
Middle-aged or older persons are more susceptible. The circulation is reduced because the arteries to the stomach and intestines are hardened and narrow. The victims also may have evidence of arteriosclerosis elsewhere, such as angina pectoris involving the heart or cramps in the calf of the leg due to poor circulation.
The pain is a deep and heavy ache, interrupted by cramps located over the entire abdomen. Some victims feel the distress mainly in the back and blame arthritis of the spine. The condition presents no problem when it is suspected but most sufferers are not this fortunate and, for years, have pain beginning an hour or so after eating. Many recognize the relationship to meals and develop a fear of eating.
A 68-year-old man was hospitalized because of abdominal pain. All the blood tests and X-rays were normal. At the outset, distress was mild but then became progressively more intense. Pain usually came one hour after lunch (his big meal) and was so severe that the victim became panicky. He felt weak, agitated, and sweated profusely. A heating pad, antacids, or going to bed afforded no relief. Morphine helped but he refused to take the medicine after a week.
He lost weight while starving himself. In time, abdominal angina was suspected and nitroglycerin was prescribed. Relief was immediate.
Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics

If stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request, KNEE NOISES
G. W. writes: Last summer I did a lot of work around the house which required considerable squatting and kneeling. Now I find that whenever I straighten up from a squatting position, my left knee cracks and there is some pain. Pm 50. Can my knee be brought back to normal?
REPLY
This depends upon what is wrong with the knee. But according to the law of averages your symptoms ought to subside spontaneously with rest. The crackling sound may be traceable to arthritis or to a disturbance in the cartilage.
CAUSE AND EFFECT
P.I. writes: Is dropsy the same as Bright's disease?
REPLY
Bright's disease is a kidney disorder whereas dropsy is the common name for waterlogged tissues (edema). There are many causes for swollen tissues, of which Bright's disease is one.
FAINTS WHEN VISITING HOSPITAL
Mrs. H. R. writes: Any time I visit a friend in the hospital, I faint. What would you suggest?
REPLY
Stay away. The interns and nurses have enough work to do without caring for visitors.
HIGH METABOLISM
E. E. writes: Could a plus 58 metabolism cause great weight loss?
REPLY
Absolutely. At plus 58 your fire is pretty hot and is burning up tissues faster than you can refuel.

BOARDING FOR THE BIRDS

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Sixty-three-year-old Mrs. Myra Cleare runs a boarding house that's strictly for the birds.

In her 100-year-old white, two-story house, she boards birds.

For $2 a week, an owner can take his pet and some feed to the Cleare house and go on vacation.

As an added bonus, Mrs. Cleare cleans the bird's cage. If it's in poor condition, she even gives it a new coat of paint.

Said Mrs. Cleare: "I just like birds. I've had some of my own and I know how to take care of them."

THREE-WAY PROTECTION

MIAMI (AP) — Clyde Ottenberg is one mailman who doesn't have to worry about being bitten by dogs.

Three dogs belonging to patrons along his route have adopted him and escort him daily on his appointed rounds. If an unfriendly pup appears, Ottenberg's pals chase it away.

ELEGANT GROCERY SHOPPING

MIAMI (AP)—Wall-to-wall carpeting is only one of the unusual features of Bert's Grocery Store in suburban Coconut Grove.

Bert Albury also has installed sculptured Italian lighting fixtures and walnut paneling. Shelves are lined with paper lace doilies.

"I wanted to be different," says Albury. "I want to have a unique place. Well, I think I've got it — and the customers love it."

Other touches: Bert's carries French bread flown here within 24 hours after it leaves the oven in Paris, canned octopus, boiled quail eggs and fresh fruit from South America, Africa, Australia and Switzerland.

WEEK'S PREVIEW

It's the week for specials, with NBC-TV offering six variations to sparkle its regular schedule and CBS will have two. ABC isn't budging from its routine format.

NBC leads off Sunday afternoon with "The Vine," an unusual treatment on the life of Christ, followed at 6:30 p. m. by a Bell Telephone Hour devoted to Toscanini. Wednesday night there's a Bob Hope Comedy Special.

Two extras highlight Thursday night's NBC lineup, starting with a Project 20 special, "End of the Trail," followed by Highlights of the 1967 Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. The cycle is completed Friday night with the Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation of "Anastasia."

CBS gets into the act with a news special Monday night on the controversial CIA payments. Tuesday night the CBS news team focuses on "Saigon" in a study of the delicate relationship between Vietnamese and Americans in this city of three million people which has both benefited and suffered from the U. S. presence.

WPSX-TV, Ch. 3, our educational channel, makes a bid for some of your attention with theatrical productions from Philadelphia, New York and London highlighting the dramatic fare. Monday night's Showcase series was "Theatre of the Living Arts" with performances by the entire Philadelphia company.

Wednesday night's Play of the Week brings the second half of "The Ice Man Cometh," starring Jason Robards Jr. and Myron McCormick. The Royal Shakespeare Company of London presents "The Comedy of Errors" on Friday night. For music, there's Folk Guitar

Thursday night, Segovia Master Class Monday evening, and The Many Sounds of Music series Friday evening features the Indiana University of Pennsylvania wind ensemble.

Information programs offer "Justice: South African Style" at 8:30 Monday night and at 10:30 Focus on World Affairs discusses "Turbulence in China." The twice-monthly "News in Perspective" series Wednesday evening has the New York Times news staff (Lester Markel, Tom Wicker, and Max Frankel) discussing Vietnam, LBJ, and "the haves and the have-nots."

"The Free Press and Foreign Policy" will be the topic on Pennsylvania Magazine Thursday night and Friday night's Great Decisions-1967 will continue with "New Deal in Chile."

+ + + CIGARETTES MAY GO

Cigarette advertising eventually may disappear from television, a spokesman told members at the National Association of Broadcasters conference in Washington last week. Paul Comstock said "if legislation makes health warnings in cigarette advertising mandatory it will end cigarette advertising on radio and probably on TV as well."

The consensus was that eventually ever increasing restrictions will result in there being no point in advertising and broadcasters were advised to be looking in the next five to ten years for sources to replace cigarette advertising.

+ + + NBC FILLS SCHEDULE

NBC-TV has filled the few vacancies in its 1967-68 schedule and added three new shows. The schedule now looks like this:

Sunday — Walt Disney, The Mothers-in-Law, Bonanza, High Chaparral; Monday — The Monkees, Man From Uncle, Danny Thomas Show; Tuesday — Star Trek, I Dream of Jeannie, Tuesday Night Movies; Wednesday — The Virginian, Kraft Music Hall, Run For Your Life; Thursday — Daniel Boone, Ironside, Dragnet, Dean Martin; Friday — Tarzan, Jerry Lewis Show, Everywhere a Chick Chick, News Specials or Bell Telephone Hour; Saturday — Maya, Get Smart, Saturday Night Movies.

+ + + MORE MOVIES

NBC-TV has closed a deal with United Artists Corp. for a package of 94 feature films to be shown over a nine-year period starting in Sept., 1967. License fees totaled a reported $115 million.

The package is said to include 39 repeats of previously shown movies, plus 55 films new to TV. It is also believed that the package contains several "blockbuster" films such as "West Side Story."

+ + + PEOPLE & PROGRAMS

COLOR COMES TO Search for Tomorrow and The Guiding Light starting Monday, March 13, and another CBS daytime serial, Love of Life, is due to be tinted May 2. Beginning Sept. 12 all CBS daytime shows will be in color by including Edge of Night, Secret Storm and Capt. Kangaroo.

WE INTERRUPT THIS SEASON, an NBC Experiment in Television offering on Sunday, March 26, is a musical lampoon of television, with sketches, songs and dances, accompanied by duo-pianists. The boom is lowered on weather reports, convention coverage, movies, commercials, viewers, producers, and network and agency executives. Sounds like fun!

BILINGUAL CHILDREN

MIAMI (AP) — A second public school is going bilingual in this city with a large colony of Cuban exiles.

Pupils at Central Beach Elementary School, which is evenly divided between native speakers of Spanish and English, will receive instruction in all subject areas in both languages starting with the fall term. The program starts at kindergarten level. The idea is to make all pupils bilingual.

By Rev. Arthur F. Hummel, Pastor of the Akeley and Russell Methodist Churches.

We are nearing the end of what is commonly known as Lent. This is a period of forty days (excluding Sundays) prior to Easter. The word "Lent" originated from the Anglo-Saxon word, lencten, which means "spring." Many people use this period as a time of self-denial leading up to Easter Sunday. These forty days are to symbolize the forty days and nights when Jesus fasted and prayed following his baptism and just before the start of his public ministry. This period opens with Ash Wednesday and closes with Easter Sunday. It is expected to be characterized by fasting and the "giving up" of certain sins.

The problem is that many people who follow this observance precede it by such sinful merry-making and then immediately following the season a grand indulgence of the same sins takes place, which nullifies the good derived during the season. Many devout keepers of the season have come to make light of it. An honest evaluation of the Mardi-Gras celebration (wherever they may be held) should give a Christian good grounds for soul searching. Drunken reveling marks a last fling before Lent, because during this period people feel an unusual compulsion to be "good".

Lent was not practiced by the first century

Christians. Fasting was practiced at times, especially at the ordination of leaders; and it is appropriate for Christians to fast occasionally now. But the spirit of sacrifice found in the New Testament was not for a "mere season" prior to Easter, but for a lifetime. If what you have given up during these Lenten days is wrong now, it is wrong the rest of the year. God calls us to be sensible, consistent Christians 365 days of the year. There is no such thing as a part-time sin and part-time forgiveness. Repentance is a forsaking and turning away from sin with no intention of returning to it again. When God forgives sin, He forgets it. He can't continue forgetting it if we constantly remind Him through our continued practice. God calls men into His fellowship and this takes us out of the sin-practicing business.

Paul told the Romans in Chapter 12 of his letter: "With eyes wide open to the mercies of God, I beg you, my brothers, as an act of intelligent worship, to give him your bodies, as a living sacrifice, consecrated to him and acceptable by him. Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mold, but let God remold your minds from within, so that you may prove in practice that the plan of God for you is good, meets all his demands and moves toward the goal of true maturity." May this be the goal for each one of us.

Walter Sweeney, chairman of the canvass for funds for a manse, reported that the results had surpassed the goal, as three-year pledges amounted to over $15,000. He thanked his assistants, Vern Johnson, Harvey Sanden, Robert Morgan, Norman Abbott and thirty members of the congregation who had assisted.
